

FLASH FIRE, EXPLOSION SWEEPS THROUGH VICTORIA BOX FACTORY

Pageantry, colorful uniforms and speeches can hold attention of small boys for only so long. At IODE Victoria Day service yesterday before legislative buildings, three-year-old

Leaping Flames Lick City Sky

A spectacular general-alarm fire, sped by an explosion that an eyewitness called "a hell of a great wallop," broke out at 2.30 a.m. today in the Dalziel Box Company plant, 2800 Bridge Street on Selkirk Water.

FLAMING MILL

By 3.15 a.m., roaring flames had wrecked a large planing mill and half a dozen small sheds behind the main sawmill. Firemen were battling to save the sawmill from destruction and there was some doubt that they could win the nip-and-tuck battle.

An estimated 4,000 square feet of buildings and lumber was afire.

FIRST ALARM

The first alarm reported the blaze at the neighboring Moore-Whittington mill.

But when firemen arrived they found that it had broken out in outbuildings connected to the box factory next door.

The firemen were not hampered by high winds and had hoses trained on the huge flames within minutes.

FIRST THERE

Dan Williams, 961 Tattersall, one of the first to see the mushrooming blaze, was driving in a car with three companions at the Fountain Circle when:

"I saw flames leaping 75 feet in the air. We drove over and saw the fire was confined to a green-chain shed at the rear of the property."

"Then we heard a hell of a great wallop. It sounded like an oil tank exploded. Then flames spread all over and burned forward into other sheds. The main building was still intact."

OUT OF DANGER

By press time there seemed no danger that the flames would seriously damage the main building or adjoining industrial plants which include the Moore Whittington Mill, The Victoria Paving Company and the city public works yards. Homes in the area seemed safe.

Colonist reporter Jack Fry said that by 2.40 a.m., flames were causing transformers to explode "in brilliant blue flames."

SPARKS FLY

Sparks were flying hundreds of feet into the air, some of them falling on houses as far away as Hillside. Fry said residents in the affected area "are in quite a dither," but none planned evacuation of their homes.

Fire department said alarms were coming in so fast "we can't count them—but it's a general alarm one, all right."

All on-duty firemen went to the blaze at first call, 2.30 a.m. Within minutes, 25 off-duty firemen were called to their posts.

SEEN FOR MILES

The huge fire, throwing leaping flames hundreds of feet in the air could be seen for miles as it lit up the whole central horizon of the city.

Flying Phil 'Does' Italy At 86 Per

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Highways Minister Gagliardi, who has had speeding trouble in B.C., reports there are no speed limits on certain roads in Italy.

The minister, on a three-week visit to Europe, wrote that he travelled at 140 kilometres an hour (86 miles an hour) on Italian highways.

Herter Tries Again

GENEVA (CP)—U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter made a new bid to the Soviet Union Friday to resume the long-stalled general disarmament negotiations.

Herter told Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in the Big Four conference that the United States does not irrevocably link disarmament measures with German unification.

Herter appealed to Gromyko to accept the Western peace plan linking German reunification with successive stages of a system for European security and a start on global disarmament.

But he made plain that the United States is prepared to resume the general disarmament talks—which stalled in the United Nations two years ago—apart from Big Four efforts to bridge the East-West differences over Germany.

Mixed Bunnies That Caused Uproar

Controversial children's book "The Rabbits Wedding," in hands of Miss Emily Reed, Alabama's director of public libraries.—(AP Photofax.)

Alabaman Aggravated

'Rabbit Not White? Burn That Book!'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)

—An Alabama state legislator said Friday a children's book depicting the marriage of a white girl rabbit to a black boy rabbit should be burned.

State Sen. E. O. Eddins said the picture book should be "taken off the shelves and burned" even though it is intended for pre-school-age children.

"There are many other books of the same nature and others that are Communistic which should be burned as well," Eddins said.

NOT IN OPEN

The children's picture book, "The Rabbits Wedding," intended for children under five years of age, has been removed from the open shelves of Alabama public libraries because of segregation criticism.

Garth Williams, author of the book, said he was "completely unaware that animals with white fur were considered blood relations of white human beings." He said the rabbits had contrasting colors for pictorial reasons.

Emily Wheelock Reed, director of the Alabama library service division, said the book had not been banned.

BY REQUEST

"That would not be morally right," she said. "We have put it on the reserve shelf where the public can get it by request only."

She said the reserve shelf carries books which might be considered offensive for reasons of morality or obscenity. "Lolita" is one of these.

Miss Reed said she was surprised at the criticism. "Personally," she said, "I like the book."

Power Subsidy Urged

Island Milked By Commission?

By Colonist Staff Reporter

MAPLE BAY—Vancouver Island municipal representatives called on the provincial government yesterday to subsidize B.C. Power Commission operations in low-return districts.

The Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities passed a resolution which said the commission was making a profit in Island districts far in excess of the margin utilities normally were allowed, to make up for losses in other districts. (See other stories, Page 13).

MOST UNJUST

"The voice of the Vancouver Island municipalities might help convince the government that it would be most unjust if any more were put on our power rates," said Mayor William Moore of Courtenay.

Another Courtenay resolution, passed by the association, asked the provincial government to "equalize" all its laws regarding land assessment.

SEPARATE ASSESSMENTS

Reeve C. A. P. Murlison of North Cowichan said a change in the Assessment Equalization Act made at the last session of the legislature appeared to require municipalities to have two separate assessments of property, one under that act for school taxation and the other under the Municipal Act for general taxation.

He described the change as "a piece of nonsense no less excusable for being unintentional."

The delegates also approved: A resolution, introduced by Coun. Fred Hawes of Oak Bay, calling on the Union of B.C. Municipalities executive to try to find a solution to the problem of people living free of property taxation in trailers while making demands on schools and other services.

PART OF THEIR SHARE

A resolution, introduced by Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich, calling for a study of provincial and municipal welfare costs since a new method of sharing went into effect—"I suspect we are paying part of their share."

Ottawa Inks April in Black

OTTAWA (CP)—The government started its 1959-60 fiscal year in the black Finance Minister Fleming reports.

In April, first month of the fiscal year, there was a small surplus of $1,400,000 after revenues of $299,900,000 and expenditures of $298,500,000.

Canada Chiefs Visit NORAD

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—An RCAF Comet jet airliner landed here last night, bringing high members of the Canadian government on a quick visit to North American air defence command headquarters.

Aboard the plane were Defence Minister Pearson, Finance Minister Fleming, Defence Production Minister O'Hurley, Air Marshall Hugh Campbell, commander in chief of the RCAF, and Gen. Charles Foulkes, chairman of the chief of staff committee.

Revised Law May Cut Competition

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is drafting revisions in the anti-combines legislation to allow certain types of competition-eliminating business mergers, it was learned Friday.

Well-informed sources say framers of the new legislation are encountering some difficulty in writing this modification into the long-standing principle of anti-combines law that maintenance of business competition is its chief purpose.

FULTON SPEECH

Some idea of what the government has in mind was given in a recent Toronto speech by Justice Minister Fulton.

Among principles and purposes he said the government intends to retain in the legislation is "by maintaining competition, to bring about the most effective allocation of resources and the highest possible standard of living."

PRICE CONTROL

Informants say elimination of competition for the purpose of getting control of prices, restraining trade or other factors detrimental to the public interest will still be illegal under the legislation.

But they say the government plans to ask Parliament to approve a modification which would add to the existing principle—that free competition is in itself in the best interests of the public—a qualification as to what kind of free competition is desirable and what isn't.

Other changes to be proposed, sources say, include a provision aimed at penalizing businesses that engage in misleading advertising, such as misrepresenting prices as being wholesale prices.

West Leaderless In Cold War—Monty

OXFORD, England (Reuters)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said Friday night the West has no one to lead it in negotiations with Russia to end the cold war.

Britain's outspoken war-time commander, whose recent criticism of American leadership touched off a furore on both sides of the Atlantic, returned to his attack on Western politicians in the last two lectures at Oxford University.

DEGREE OF UNITY

Montgomery said the Western alliance never would reach the necessary degree of unity for successful negotiations with Russia without leadership.

"And, at the moment, there is no obvious acceptable leader in sight—if by leader we mean someone who is able and willing to give clear and sensible guidance to the whole group and in whom all the member nations have absolute confidence."

REALISTIC FACTORS

Montgomery, although he conceded that few military leaders make good politicians, advanced six "realistic factors" which must be accepted by both sides before East-West tension can be brought to an end:

1. The West must realize that Russia has no intention of launching a nuclear war on the West;
2. The West will never attack the East;
3. It is illogical to expect Russia to agree that a united Germany armed with nuclear weapons can be integrated into the Western alliance—in any case, the reunification of Germany is not practical politics at present;

4. It is illogical to try to solve the German problem without first solving the problem of European security;

5. It is illogical to work on the assumption that the East German government does not exist;

6. It is illogical to work on the assumption that the true government of China is in Formosa.

NATO CRITICIZED

He criticized some NATO nations for failing to regard the struggle against international communism as a world-wide one and not just confined to the NATO area.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

MY dog returned home last Sunday after escaping from the yard and staying out for five days. He was noticeably thinner. He whined and wriggled with pleasure at being home.

For some days we had a fine-looking female golden Labrador that persisted in attaching herself to us, in spite of all our efforts to send her away. She eventually became discouraged when we repelled her attempts to climb in the car with us. We went away for some hours, and returned to find that she had gone. But we still have a small black puppy as an intermittent guest. We often take him home. A few minutes later he is scratching on our door again.

A Victoria resident (whose name I withhold) writes to rebuke me for having a "couldn't care less" attitude toward my dog.

"... If people are not sufficiently interested to spend a well-invested sum in sending the animal to the veterinarian for the simple operation which would cure roving propensities, then those persons should not have a dog at all.

"There are also those feckless and selfish persons who keep an unsupervised female dog. The mongrel puppies in such circumstances are... given away indiscriminately... Any humane society can tell you the sad tale of these unwanted waifs...

"I hope before you accept another dog you will have the decency and common humanity to have it neutered..."

There is some sense to what this critic says. I believe people should be willing to spend money on their dogs. Personally, I have taken my dog to the veterinarian for distemper shots and other needs. The veterinarian has always been patient about waiting for his money.

I took in my last dog, a female, and had her spayed. But I never liked doing it. I have always felt that there is something barbaric in depriving any creature of one of the natural functions of its life.

It is often better for human comfort and convenience to have such operations performed. But why pretend that we do it for the benefit of the animals? We do it for ourselves.

Dogs, if left alone, would prefer a rough-and-tumble existence, free to wander and reproduce as they pleased. Their ancestors lived in that way, until man and dog formed an alliance. Much later, man pampered the dog and began to control the dog population, because the sight of too many dogs running through gardens and rooting in rubbish heaps made man feel uncomfortable.

One reason why I stay away from formal animal welfare work is that there are too many cranks in the field. Luckily for the animals, there are also numbers of well-balanced people, who have the patience to haggle with the cranks. As for me, I haven't.

Labor Names Asked For New UIC Slate

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Starr has asked for a new slate of candidates for the Unemployment Insurance Commission advisory committee, three of whose labor members resigned in protest recently.

Terms of the chairman, four labor nominees and four from employers expire June 27. Mr. Starr wrote recently to find out if the present members will be renominated and hopes to get the suggestions of the Canadian Labor Congress.

The committee came into the news recently when the CLC accused Mr. Starr of ignoring CLC nominees to fill a vacancy. The labor resignations followed.

Drastic Nike Cuts, Lag in Bomarc

'Security Menace'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The army said Friday a proposed drastic cut in its Nike-Hercules anti-aircraft missile program menaces the security of the United States.

It took this stand in answering questions about the action of the Senate armed services committee a week ago proposing a slash of about three-quarters in the planned number of launching sites for the nuclear-tipped Nike-Hercules. The answer, furnished by an army spokesman, included not only criticism of the Senate committee recommendation—something rare for one of the armed forces to do—but also a sharp rap at the air force's competing Bomarc missile system.

The army's stand has special significance for Canada, which is to have two Bomarc bases in Eastern Canada in the future.

Earlier this year the Canadian government announced that it intended to introduce the Bomarc into the Canadian air defence system and cancel the Avro Arrow development program.

The Senate committee's revision of a military construction bill already passed by the House of Representatives, the army spokesman said, "would leave serious gaps in the nation's air defence missile system in the United States" and Hawaii.

The army spokesman complained that the Bomarc, under development, isn't in the air defence system and if things go well "the earliest date when Bomarc can begin to assume a significant role" in defence is at least two years away.

'Glad to Help Solve Case'

HAVANA (AP)—Count Alfred de Marigny, once tried and acquitted for the murder of Sir Harry Oakes, his father-in-law, said Friday he would be happy to return to Nassau and "help clear up this matter once and for all."

"This should have been done at the time it happened," he told a reporter at his home in a Havana suburb.

The Bahaman House of Assembly has voted unanimously to ask Scotland Yard to renew the investigation of the 15-year-old murder case.

NEW EVIDENCE

Cyril Stevenson, who introduced the resolution calling for the renewed inquiry, said new evidence is in the hands of Raymond Schindler, an American detective who figured in the original inquiry. In New York, however, Schindler says he has no new evidence but thinks a new investigation would be a good thing.

Ferry Issue

Troops Kill Rioting Commuters

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazilian marines opened fire with sub-machineguns and pistols Friday on an angry crowd that rioted for three hours after a ferryboat strike stranded thousands of commuters.

The mob burned the ferry dock, offices and a restaurant in downtown Niteroi, a town of 200,000 across the bay from Rio.

Government sources said marine gunfire killed one person and wounded between 30 and 50. Newspaper reports said up to 12 were killed and 64 wounded.

The trouble broke out after ferry workers staged a sudden strike at midnight demanding pay increases promised them May 1.

The navy provided a launch for the 20-minute trip to Rio. Commuters surged out of control attempting to board the launch, and the navy commander ordered the marines to fire.

Waiting for a Lead

THE spectacle of the B.C. government preparing to burn the mortgage on the province's direct debt in August while conning the eastern money market on the prospect of funding $75,000,000 in bank loans on account of guaranteed crown agencies would appear to be part of the irony of the times. A recently issued school loan, provincially guaranteed, was said to have been made on a 5.3 per cent yield basis. To fund $75,000,000 in new debentures, even though government-backed, on today's money market might prove a punitive experience. Two federally-guaranteed issues by the Canadian National Railways were offered this month on a yield basis exceeding 5 per cent.

No British Columbian doubts the ability of this province to pay its way and to meet its direct and guaranteed commitments. The developing values are there. It is the cost of borrowing under present conditions, however, which is pressing like a brake on public accounts. When the Dominion offers discount bonds to yield the highest return witnessed in this country in 29 years, the provinces and the municipalities under them are being held in a very tight squeeze. The provinces may find the going rough, but for the municipalities with ever-swelling populations and new service needs the problem is not even soluble.

Ask a banker or an investment dealer how long such conditions will obtain and all one is likely to get by way of an answer is a mute shrug of the shoulders. The Bank of Canada puts the responsibility on the overweening demand for fresh borrowings and the danger of inflation. The chartered banks point to the central bank and to Dominion policy, and complain of their circumscribed lending potential in the present circumstances. Business corporations needing money for urgent development have all but withdrawn from the debenture market, and in a number of instances are forgoing their plans if they cannot fund their needs through fresh equity stocks. The average citizen, if there is one, is not encouraged to initiate anything under such conditions.

Meanwhile private savings accumulate, more insurance is being written than ever before and there seems to be plenty of credit in the nation—if not in use. The average citizen, no doubt, is looking for the answers like everyone else. Mr. Fleming's budget did not supply them. The nation as a whole is still waiting for the lead the administration at Ottawa was presumed to have in preparation. When will it come, and in what may it consist?

Intriguing Speculation

WHEN a person makes a suggestion to some club of which he is a member, invariably he is selected as chairman of a committee to carry his suggestion out. Something of the kind may envelop Mr. Lester B. Pearson. He advanced the idea recently that the Berlin crisis would be best eased by putting that city under UN control. Now a New York dispatch says Mr. Pearson is being cited by UN diplomats as the man to supervise such a set-up.

There is no indication so far that the big-four powers would agree to a UN agency in Berlin, nor is it certain that the leader of the federal opposition would take such a post. It is an intriguing thought, nevertheless. There is some room for the belief also that Mr. Pearson would welcome a return to the international diplomatic arena which formerly he adorned so well. That basically, and most of the country may be of this opinion, is where his considerable talents could find their best expression.

It was Mr. Pearson's wide popu-

Uniform Traffic Signs

WITH less acclaim than the achievement merits, all 10 Provinces of Canada have finally agreed to adopt a uniform system of highway and street traffic signs and pavement markings. This means that motorists will soon be able to travel the length and breadth of Canada without having to learn a different set of rules at each border. No matter where they may be each sign or marking will have only one interpretation.

Adoption this month of a standardization system by the national Joint Committee on Uniform Traffic Control Devices marked the culmination of three years of work and study by engineers and traffic experts in all provinces. Agreement was not reached in haste or easily because, of the many and conflicting systems of control, each province was inclined to regard its own as the best.

The discussions and exhaustive experiments, however, were characterized throughout by unity of purpose in the interests of public safety and the convenience of drivers, whether Canadians or visitors from other countries. Henceforth the latter will need to learn only one set of rules for the entire Dominion. Up to now there have been innumerable and perplexing differences, since the meaning of control signs has varied from city to city within provinces as well as from province to province. Even in the metropolitan region of Greater Victoria there were until fairly recently evidences of conflict, confusing to resident as well as visiting motorists.

This striving for sensible uniformity reaches beyond the national border, and offers promise that before long there will be a standard system of signs and markings embracing the whole of North America.

Interpreting the News

Prepared To Bargain

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE arrival of the United States defence secretary, Neil McElroy, in Geneva goes a long way to rebut accusations that the U.S. is over-rigid in its approach to East-West negotiations.

Even if McElroy takes no active part in the talks, his presence implies that the American delegation is ready to talk about the military aspects of the package deal that State Secretary Herter put forward last week on behalf of the West.

That leaves it up to the Russians to make counter-proposals to the West's disarmament plans. Up to now, Andrei Gromyko has expressed interest only in the status of Berlin and the signing of separate peace treaties with East and West Germany.

For a change, it is the Russians who appear to have been caught off balance. It is probable that Nikita Khrushchev, in his anxiety to downgrade the importance of the foreign ministers' deliberations, has not staffed Gromyko's delegation heavily with defence experts.

Pending the hurried arrival of Russian experts, the resulting impression is that the Russians are too interested in building up prestige for their East German, Polish and Czech satellites to join the West in coming to grips with the real issues that have brought the ministers together.

Beyond scoring a tactical point for the West in the interminable propaganda contest, the significance of McElroy's unexpected appearance can be measured only by contents of his briefcase.

There is little chance that he plans to offer the Russians any new terms until they have at least replied to the security proposals in the Herter package: limitation of armed forces by both East and West, international control of nuclear weapons, measures to guard against surprise attack and discussion of a zone in which troop disposals would be restricted to an agreed maximum.

On the other hand, it is probable that the American defence chief is prepared to spell out some of these general proposals in detail, and that he has limited powers to modify them if the Russians show signs of willingness to bargain.

Ancient Pledge

Two Elks for The Queen

By ERIC DOWNTON

THE oldest surviving custom of North American tribute to royalty will be faithfully observed when Queen Elizabeth comes to Winnipeg in July. A pledge given by be-wigged soldiers and dandies nearly 300 years ago is to be kept by a group of hard-boiled businessmen.

"The Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading into Hudson's Bay" will present to the Queen two elks and two black beaver skins. The company's charter, five sheets of parchment now preserved at Hudson's Bay House, London, was granted by King Charles II in 1670 to Prince Rupert and 17 other "noblemen and gentlemen."

Such a situation would require, scientists suggest, an increase of more than 4½ times the present strontium content of milk.

What you might call the small print in the report calculates that as of Jan. 1 the average Canadian adult had one four-hundredth of a microcurie of strontium 90 in his or her body — presumably concentrated in bone. This is three times as much as he had two years earlier. Radiological experts suggest humans can stand 40 times as much as the present amount without injurious consequences.

Even allowing for the likelihood that a minor but substantial amount of strontium 90 enters the body in water and in food other than milk, there is obviously a large discrepancy between a 4.5-fold increase to a milk danger line, and a 40-fold increase to a health danger line.

This anomaly does not necessarily reflect on the findings of Drs. Bird and Mar. Rather, it indicates a hopeful aspect of the situation. It indicates that our bodies are rejecting most of the strontium 90 being offered in the milk we drink, so that nothing like the full amount of radio-activity in milk is lodging in our bones. The reason for this appears to be that our bodies have a decided preference for calcium over strontium. To paraphrase a cigarette ad, "With discriminating bones, it's calcium 10 to one."

Drs. Bird and Mar haven't proved this yet. That's one of their next objectives. They're already collecting cadaver bones, which they'll grind up and analyse for strontium 90 content.

The scientists know that the average Canadian diet contains nearly twice as much calcium as the average adult needs. But in a calcium-deficient diet the body might take all the strontium 90 offered, with disastrous effect on the individual's health. A disquieting thought is that children, whose bones are growing rapidly, need more calcium than adults. Logically they are more likely than adults to have to resort to strontium 90 to make up a calcium deficiency.

The area of principal hope in the strontium 90 situation is political. The atomic powers have suspended atomic tests, so that no more strontium 90 is currently being added to the atmosphere. The hope is that they will agree to a permanent prohibition to replace the suspension agreement which expires this coming fall.

Another area of hope is medical: doctors and health authorities may be able, should the need arise, to minimize the body's metabolism of strontium 90 by ensuring that everyone gets an adequate supply of strontium-free calcium.

The third area of hope is scientific: already scientists here in Ottawa are working on ways to remove strontium 90 from milk, in much the same way that calcium and magnesium are removed from hard water to make it soft.

Meanwhile a dry summer would be welcome. Rain leaches strontium 90 out of the air; increases the amount on the ground for cows to eat.

This happens to coincide with the passing from the scene of John Foster Dulles, and there are those now naively saying that it only the new secretary of state, Christian Herter, would speak up firmly these differences could be resolved and the Western powers brought into line again as Dulles held them in step. But something far more than firm words is vital if these half-submerged forces of nationalism are not to work with increasing violence and virulence to the end of the rapid deterioration of the alliance. More than any of the trivia of the day-to-day currents of the conference this should be for the West the meaning of what is going on in the Geneva goldfish bowl.

In Washington a few weeks ago the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance celebrated its 10th anniversary with pomp and circumstance. While there were hints of what might be done in the years ahead, such as a common approach to raising living standards in the underdeveloped countries, nothing new came out of that meeting.

With General De Gaulle insisting that there can be no real integration even of the military forces of NATO—it must be an alliance of fully sovereign powers with France a little more sovereign than the others—it can be argued that the present trend is away from the kind of real co-operation that could knit the Western powers together for really meaningful co-operation.

It is hardly necessary to add that this is a situation ready made for the Soviets to exploit. And there is some evidence here that they are beginning to understand how to take advantage of it.

"He really has a summit complex, hasn't he?"

Reports from Ottawa

IT'S worth while to read the small print in the report of Drs. P. M. Bird and P. G. Mar on the increasing amounts of radioactive material in milk.

As I reported the other day, these federal scientists discovered that milk contains about 18 times as much radioactive strontium 90 as it did five years ago. And their findings indicate that if the amount of this atomic fallout material in milk continues to increase at the rate it did in 1957 and 1958, by the end of 1966 milk may be more dangerous than asbestine.

Such a situation would require, scientists suggest, an increase of more than 4½ times the present strontium content of milk.

What you might call the small print in the report calculates that as of Jan. 1 the average Canadian adult had one four-hundredth of a microcurie of strontium 90 in his or her body — presumably concentrated in bone. This is three times as much as he had two years earlier. Radiological experts suggest humans can stand 40 times as much as the present amount without injurious consequences.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

A RECENT Packsack which related how two foxes, running ahead of hounds, took turns at hiding in a hollow log and ran in relays until they had completely exhausted the hounds, has brought a furore of letters from fox hunters all over the country. Their tone is derisive. This is a matter of grief to Skipper Shan Howard and Dr. Reg Paul who told the story to the Packsack originally.

"So," says Skipper Howard, "here's another. And any fox hunter who disbelieves this simply hasn't ever been fox hunting."

"When a fox gets weary of being run by the hounds, he runs a ring. He picks out a nice little copse or clump of brush with a stump or a rock in the middle of it. You will find plenty of such hummocks in old pastures and around the edges of woodlots.

"Around this copse the fox runs not once but two or three times, leaving a good clear hot trail in a circle. A ring."

"Then, with a colossal jump, the fox bounds as far as it can right into the middle of the ring. And there it sits on the stump or rock and waits for the hounds to catch up. They run around the circle. They run around it again. And again, furiously tongueing."

"Now, it is the nature of hounds to run wide. So there they go, round and round, getting wider all the time, and farther out, with the fox sitting pretty in the middle, laughing. And in a few minutes, the hounds have run so wide they have lost the scent entirely, and give up and go home."

Now how about that?

Chiselling for a Dime

(From The Calgary Albertan)

WE note that Calgary restaurant owners are not the least bit enthused over the recent drastic cuts in the price of coffee which has brought that beverage to the lowest level in 10 years.

Quick to raise their coffee prices when cost of the raw material was shooting skyward, the restaurants are obviously loath to revise them downward now. One fellow the other day even spoke wistfully of the prospect of raising the price to 15 cents a cup.

We're not going to butt our heads against a stone wall with the argument that coffee prices should come down. But surely there can no longer be any excuse at all for the chiselling practice, all too prevalent, of charging an extra 10 cents for a cup of coffee when ordered with a full-course meal, and then a further 10 cents for a refill.

Washington Angle

Goldfishbowl Diplomacy

By MARQUIS CHILDS

GENEVA — According to news reports from London, Prime Minister Macmillan played a long weekend of golf at Gleneagles, the magnificent golf resort in Scotland. This news has a wistful meaning for the negotiators at Geneva, for it was Macmillan who at Camp David talks with President Eisenhower in Maryland spoke of the need for privacy in high-level international negotiations and suggested that Gleneagles might be a good place to hold a summit conference.

Certainly, there is no privacy in the great goldfish bowl that is Geneva. More than a thousand reporters have their faces pressed against the glass, bent on interpreting every movement of the nervous fish swimming about in the murky water in which they perform exist.

An incident recently occurred here that illustrates the difficulties of diplomatic negotiation under such intensive surveillance. The American spokesman, Assistant Secretary of State Andrew Berding, in answer to a reporter's question said that in the end, since the proposals of West and East for solving the German problem were diametrically opposed, it would be necessary to try to work out an interim agreement for Berlin. While he now stresses "in the end," insisting that he did not intend to signal abandonment of the over-all Western peace plan, this is precisely the alarm sounded in the world's press.

The big news-gathering organizations rushed out with "hard leads," saying that an "American spokesman" had reduced the foreign ministers' conference merely to a question of an interim arrangement for Berlin. British and French spokesmen inspired denials that any such manoeuvre had been agreed to, thereby sharpening differences already existing among the three Western delegations.

A great deal has been written about the differences among the three, with special emphasis on the suspicion of the British for their apparent eagerness to meet the Russians more than half way. So far as the conference is concerned those differences are likely to be composed, with even the French finally dragged kicking and screaming to the summit.

But it is as a symptom of far deeper submerged conflicts that the needling within the alliance at Geneva has a profound and disturbing significance. With full prosperity and the Second World War a receding memory, national rivalries have come to the surface. The competition for markets, for friends, for power and influence is increasingly evident and with it goes suspicion and distrust.

The Germans and the French are suspicious of British motives in sending Sir David Eccles to Moscow with a trade mission at this particular moment. Likewise British suspicions were aroused last summer when the Krupp interests signed a big deal with the Russians. The competition in Asia and Africa is sharper, and in Europe the six nations in the European community look with jealous resentment on the efforts of Britain to form a larger free trade area.

Ugly rumors have been spread here, including the report that the British are ready to make a Middle East deal with the Soviets. While these rumors have been officially denied they are a poison which works its slow and subtle way.

This happens to coincide with the passing from the scene of John Foster Dulles, and there are those now naively saying that it only the new secretary of state, Christian Herter, would speak up firmly these differences could be resolved and the Western powers brought into line again as Dulles held them in step. But something far more than firm words is vital if these half-submerged forces of nationalism are not to work with increasing violence and virulence to the end of the rapid deterioration of the alliance. More than any of the trivia of the day-to-day currents of the conference this should be for the West the meaning of what is going on in the Geneva goldfish bowl.

Poor Man's Baruch

Sponsor Gives Actor Pain in Buttonhole

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Adolphe Menjou, most dapper actor of them all, may be a bit unhappy over the failure of his syndicated television series Target to gain a huge audience—but that wasn't what prompted his letter to the Los Angeles Examiner.

Fuming in print over what he called "the complete stupidity of some things in television," the perfectly-dressed Menjou told of his tragedy on a George Gobel show this past season.

He had, he wrote, been forced to remove the carnation from his buttonhole—because the program is sponsored by Pet Milk.

ADOLPHE MENJOU
... complete stupidity

NEW YORK (UPI)—A 75-year-old man, described by his lawyer as "a poor man's Bernard Baruch," received a suspended sentence Friday for using part of his $71-a-month relief cheques to amass $21,000 worth of stocks.

The defendant, Harry Schweitzer, who said he had speculated in stock as "a way of life," said he planned to continue his frugal existence but promised to stay out of the market in the future.

Schweitzer had pleaded guilty to petty larceny and violation of social welfare laws in playing the market with money left over from his monthly relief cheques.

A welfare department attorney told the court that Schweitzer had received nearly $17,000 in relief payments since 1935, but with his market profits had repaid all of the money plus $2,149 to cover administrative costs of the case.

Bearskin Tally Mounts for Guards

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—Buckingham Palace guards were assured of at least 30 new ceremonial hats as the result of the mass bear hunt here.

Latest tally of bearskins collected was announced at 15. Two hats can be made from one bearskin.

Their Right To Booze

VANCOUVER (CP)—Getting drunk on unemployment insurance payments is a right. Doing it on Vancouver social assistance payments should not be repeated.

Officials made that clear after Magistrate Gordon Scott urged a check on spending of such payments.

The magistrate convicted two men of strong-arming a third man following a drunken party in which drink was bought by jobless payments. Henry O'Neill, 30, and Everett Barton, 27, were sentenced to nine months each.

Denmark is a low-lying country, its highest point reaching only 600 feet above sea level.

Jobless Frauds 1,500 a Year

Punitive action against people who attempt to defraud the Unemployment Insurance Commission in British Columbia is running to about 1,500 cases a year, according to the Pacific region's chief enforcement officer.

W. T. Begg, Vancouver UIC official, said that of some 3,000 investigations into suspected fraud cases undertaken by his department annually, about half bring prosecution or disqualification from insurance benefits.

Annual rate of investigations of suspected fraud in UIC matters have increased five-fold in the past five years.

An investigation staff of 10, two of which are stationed in Victoria, covers the province.

In the field of prosecutions, said Mr. Begg, "our batting average has been pretty high —we've been losing only about one per cent."

In B.C., the UIC handed out $5,345,905 to claimants last month, of which $345,000 was distributed in the Victoria area. Vancouver jobless got the largest portion, $2,175,526, and Prince George drew the third largest $219,100.

Control Clamped On Speculative Land Schemes

The provincial government moved yesterday to place speculative land development schemes under strict control. A lengthy list of amendments to the Real Estate Act approved by order-in-council calls for full and factual disclosure to prospective buyers on details of all land promotions; registration of subdivision plans for approval by the government's land registry branch, and licensing of development agents by the superintendent of insurance.

DEVELOPMENT AGENT
Brought within the scope of new regulations is a new designation of "agent" known as "development agent," meaning an agent that is a company which sells its own real estate.

Commenting on the regulations, Attorney-General Robert Bonner yesterday said the objective is "to enable the prospective buyer intelligently to make up his mind as to the commercial or personal desirability of the investment."

KNOW PRECISELY
"Naturally the department cannot take responsibility for such decisions, but we are anxious that prospective buyers know precisely what they are buying and these regulations are intended to make that information available to them."

Municipalities Not Burdened--Bennett

Debt Rise Slowest

A survey printed in the periodical Civic Administration for May shows that the increase in municipal taxes is less in British Columbia than in any other province in Canada, Premier Bennett said yesterday.

He quoted figures over a five-year period up to 1958 to show that debt of municipalities in British Columbia had only gone up 18.3 per cent.

But it had gone up 54.3 per cent in Alberta, 49.3 per cent in Saskatchewan, 24.5 per cent in Manitoba, 47.8 per cent in Ontario and 45.2 per cent in Quebec.

"This is the answer to would-be critics who say that to get ourselves out of debt we load it on our municipalities," He said he was referring to UBCM president C. A. P. Murison, Vancouver Mayor Tom Alsbury and other "carping critics" of the government.

OTTAWA (CP) — Continuation for another year of the federal support price on wool on a slightly improved basis has been announced by Agriculture Minister Harkness.

Garden Notes

Ginger Up Tired Soil

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Included in my mail bag last week were seven letters from readers complaining that the leaves on some of their older border carnations are dying and decaying. Two of these correspondents sent me specimen stems and leaves to diagnose the trouble and tell them what to do to check the scourge.

I couldn't find any true symptoms of disease and I don't think there is anything here to worry about. No leaf can live forever and, even on border carnations, it is perfectly natural for some to wither and die, simply from old age.

Such over-age shoots should be removed, it is true, but what is required here is just a little gingering up in general—something in the nature of a spring tonic.

The soil around older plants is almost sure to be "tired" and require some fortifying. Old manure is ideal, while peat moss soaked in a soluble fertilizer solution makes an acceptable substitute. This should be spread on the soil surface around the plant and pricked in lightly with the hand fork.

All members of the carnation family are great lime-lovers and these plants will present a most unhappy appearance when their soil has been allowed to become too acid. The treatment, of course, is to give an annual dressing of lime.

This can be given in several ways. If your garden supplies contain only hydrated lime—the fine, white powder—give each plant four level table-spoonfuls, sprinkling it around the plant and scratching it into the soil surface. Pulverized limestone, which is coarse and gray, is slower in action but longer lasting and the dosage should be doubled.

Still another way—the one which I prefer—is to mulch around each plant with a thick layer of limestone chips, such as are used in road-building operations.

The greenfly has already put in an appearance on the new, succulent carnation stems. A lot of gardeners seem to regard this pest as rather a nuisance but nothing to be taken seriously. This is all wrong, for these aphids not only sap the very lifeblood from the plants but are carriers of some of our most serious carnation diseases.

Most gardeners have their own pet remedy for greenfly, ranging all the way from soapy water to chemical compounds with 16-syllable names and, by and large, they all do a pretty fair job. With carnations, though, it is wise to avoid any spray containing an oil base, as this would dissolve the waxy coating on the leaves and stems, which is a carnation's first line of defence against various ills.

Personally, I prefer a dust to a spray, as it clings better to the waxy surface than any spray, and I favor one of the multi-purpose dusts containing malathion as one ingredient. Malathion is one of the few of our common insecticides which will control not only greenfly but also that other scourge of the carnation, the red spider mite.

Quizmasters Sit and Wait

'Greedy Snobs' Won $64,000

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Old quizmasters never die, nor do they fade away. They just sit and wait—for the next ripe television opportunity.

That's straight from a pair of the most popular of the quiz emcees—dapper gents whose shows, $64,000 Question and $64,000 Challenge, were blown sky-high a year ago by sensational charges of "fix."

Hal March and Ralph Storey, who guided the programs to top-rated success 2½ seasons, are in Hollywood more or less playing the waiting game until that hoped-for "big one" comes along.

Each confesses he'll carry life-long memories of his give-away experiences—but each for a vastly different reason.

Bland, soft-spoken Storey was distressed no end to see the bubble burst, because he had made "too many friends" among the contestants. He grew to dislike only four and he still corresponds with about 25.

But the swifter operating, more precise March found virtually all his contestants so disagreeable to work with that he's glad the whole thing's over and done with. Most of them, he points out, wound up right where he thinks they belonged—behind the Eight-ball.

"Those big gravy trains were a bad thing for the public as well as the contestants," he declared. "They bred little bit greed and discontent. I never thought it possible for such changes to come over people after winning some money. From nice, modest folks they became overnight greedy, arrogant snobs."

March regrets the many broken homes, friendships and assorted turmoil that trailed several of those who came into the sudden bonanzas, as well as the losses that many of them suffered when con artists preyed on them with get-rich-quick offers. Only a few, he believes, put anything aside for that rainy day—or that hoped-for sunny day when an TV big giveaway may hit.

"I don't know how Storey feels," he said, "but as for me disillusionment came early in the game—the second week. I had nothing in common with these people so why should I try to make pen pals out of them?"

"One thing's for sure," Hal summed up. "If five years from now you mention $64,000 Question, nine out of ten persons will stare at you in stony blankness."

Noel 'Too Old' for Lolita

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Noel Coward turned down the role of Humbert Humbert in Stanley Kubrick's movie version of "Lolita." Noel opines that he is too old for the leading lady, who is 12 years old in the book.

Some gossipists believe that Glenn Ford has an eye turned in the direction of Eva Gabor. But, being an optimist, I believe he will kiss and make up with Eleanor Powell, the great dancer who gave up a fabulous career when she married Glenn 16 years ago.

Alfred Hitchcock has latched on to Laurence Harvey, who is in tremendous demand as a result of his acting cut-ups in "Room at the Top."

The Andrew Sisters' joint autobiography, to be published next spring by Argyle Press, will be called "Relatively Speaking," and tells in detail about the old rifts.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

This deal occurred during the recent National Mixed Pair Championship, and a top score rewarded East-West for their courageous bidding and subsequent brilliant defence. West was practically sure that dummy would show up with the spade king, and East's preference for clubs seemed to mark him with shortage in spades.

Declarer won the first trick with the spade king on the board, and cashed two high hearts. Next a low diamond was led; East played the four, South the king, and West ducked. The diamond ten was won by West's ace, and a low club returned. East's queen forced South's ace, and a club was led back. Now it was time for West to cash. He won the club jack, played the ace and jack of spades, and East took a heart to set the contract one trick.

Note that the timing had to be perfect. Any opening lead other than a spade would have enabled South to set up a diamond for a discard of one losing spade. Leading the queen rather than the ace of spades merely gave declarer another chance to err.

With North-South vulnerable, South deals and holds: S. K 762 H. A K Q 8 6 D. 8 7 C. A 8

Welfare Frauds Charged to Pair

Charges involving city welfare payments from the city police court yesterday.

Patrick Poulin, 1219 Pandora, pleaded not guilty when accused of obtaining $259.50 in welfare payments from the city by false pretences between Feb. 1 and March 30 of this year.

He was remanded to May 28 for trial, with bail set at $1,000.

Bela Vargady, 217 Quebec, pleaded guilty to making a false statement by declaration on March 4 to William Hooson, city administrator of social welfare. Vargady, who said he owned no car when in fact he did, was remanded to May 29 for a probation report and sentence.

Two-Time Deserter

Name's Same; Is He?

OTTAWA (CP) — Charles Hitchcock Johnston, self-styled soldier of fortune who tipped South Pasadena, Calif., police to an alleged death plot, apparently has a Canadian Army background as a two-time deserter.

Army records show that a Charles Hitchcock Johnston, 46, a native of Cumberland, Md., twice enlisted in the Canadian army and twice deserted early during the Second World War.

COULDN'T CONFIRM

However, the army could not confirm that the man listed in their records is the same one who led police in South Pasadena to the arrest of Arthur Herbert Reiser Smith, 50, on a charge of plotting the slaying of a rival for the affections of a woman.

Smith was arrested Wednesday after he turned over two $250 payments and a promissory note for $1,500 to Johnston who said Smith, an electronics engineer, hired him to kill Joseph D. Reed, a former teacher at Santa Fe, N.M., high school.

NORTHERN FISH

Trout weighing more than 40 pounds are caught in Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories.

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta attorney-general's department said Friday that a charge has been laid against Proctor and Gamble Company of Canada, a national soap company, under the lotteries section of the Criminal Code.

The charge could set a precedent which other provinces might follow, said provincial solicitor S. A. Friedman.

EDMONTON COURT

Laid by city police, the charge will be heard June 26 in Edmonton city police court.

It involves a national lottery scheme in which Proctor and Gamble is alleged to have promised that a percentage of the firm's products would contain a slip which purchasers could fill out with an opinion and win $5.

NO COMMENT

It states that the company caused publication of the scheme between March 7 and April 25, 1959.

Officials of the Edmonton office of Proctor and Gamble declined comment.

Deas Tunnel Opening Toll-Free

VANCOUVER (CP) — The $23,000,000 Deas Island tunnel under the Fraser River was to be opened to traffic at 7 a.m. today and officials expect a traffic jam during the whole weekend.

The structure, only prefabricated tunnel in North America, will be toll-free during the weekend. More than 50,000 cars are expected to use it before tolls go into effect Sunday midnight.

The provincial government has dismissed 20 ferry crewmen who handled the cross-river ferries. Their jobs will officially end this Tuesday.

Sub-Killer Smokes Without Belching

New smoke-screening equipment can shield the vessel or landing parties within seconds. On older vessels smoke was belched through the ship's funnels, which was rather impractical, a navy official said. The Terra Nova laid a smoke screen near Trial Island.

Floating Electronics Laboratory

New Sub-Killer Bares Her Fangs

One of Canada's newest sub killers, HMCS Terra Nova bared her fangs yesterday in the waters of Juan de Fuca Strait.

The modern floating "electronics laboratory" demonstrated all her talents, from radar-controlled multi-firing guns to high-speed turns.

POWER FOR CITY

The trim 366-foot craft generates enough electrical power to supply a city of 10,000.

Newspapermen and shipbuilding officials aboard the vessel yesterday witnessed a display of sonar detection efficiency and modern sub-killing tactics.

RECENTLY FITTED

The $20,000,000 destroyer escort, only recently fitted and undergoing final builders' trials, performed like a newborn rattlesnake with two sets of three-inch multi-firing guns, deadly accurate "super depth charge mortars" and homing torpedoes.

A complement of fully qualified officers and men who are classed not as sailors but as technicians can detect an enemy and destroy it within minutes in conditions from tropical heat to extreme Arctic cold.

A new pride of Canada's modern navy, the Terra Nova was built for crewman luxury, detection and killing efficiency.

Skipper Cmdr. William H. Willson, a veteran destroyer "old man," said his vessel has a "slight disadvantage in warfare against modern submarines but if handled properly can also be a menace to submarines."

SHIELD FORM COVER

The complete wartime complement of 16 officers and 260 men operate the ship from shielded cover in case of nuclear attack. Everything from bow to stern is electrically operated.

Naval officials report only that the ship will speed at "more than 25 knots," but unofficial sources estimate top speed at 40 knots.

In conjunction with a helicopter escort, an enemy submarine could be corralled in minutes with the aid of banks of complex sonar devices.

If called on to support a landing party a new type of smoke screen can be laid to blanket the whole area.

During yesterday's trials the vessel was under control by the builders, Victoria Machinery Depot, who first laid the keel in 1952.

She will be officially turned over to the navy in June and will later leave to serve in the Atlantic Command.

Victoria Asked For Information

The city of Prince George has asked Victoria city council for information about Victoria's experience with the council-city manager form of government.

Like Lady She Is, She Arrived Late

Thousands of Victorians gathered on the Dallas Road waterfront yesterday afternoon to watch the final test run of Canada's new destroyer escort, the Terra Nova.

Few of them, on the grass or in cars parked solidly from Beacon Hill Park to beyond Clover Point, seemed to mind the ship being late.

It had been announced she'd be off Clover Point by 1:30 p.m. for speed runs, smoke-screen-laying and gun tests. She came racing up just before 3 p.m.

A navy spokesman gave this explanation: Terra Nova had first of all to finish off one trial run for gun-marking, and had to fire mortars.

Unfortunately, at the time there were three merchantmen out in the strait, and the ferry Kalakala was making a run between Victoria and Port Angeles.

Sons, Fathers Aboard

Many of those watching had a personal interest in the Terra Nova. Husbands, sons, fathers were aboard her—VMD workmen who'd built her, and who, for the most part, were laid off last night.

Mrs. J. A. King, 4139 Carey, said her husband was a welder who'd been working on the Terra Nova since she was started.

"He feels she's his more than the navy's," Mrs. King said. Helping her with pictures was her mother, Mrs. M. H. Baird, visiting from the Arrow Lake country of B.C.

W. H. Mitchell, 1358 Monterey, was patiently waiting for the vessel to lay a smoke screen.

"My son Ronald is a VMD

engineer aboard, and he told me he'd have something to do with the smoke screen. They'd better produce it, or I'll have something to say to him," said Mr. Mitchell. Five minutes later, the screen was laid down.

English-born Mrs. W. Markiewicz, 338 Simcoe, who met her Polish-born husband in the Old Country during the war, was one of those sorry to see the ship leave VMD.

"My husband's an engine fitter, and has been working on her for about a year. I don't know what he'll do after today."

"However," Mrs. Markiewicz went on, "it's not likely we'll get a chance to go aboard the ship, so it's nice to see her in action this way."

Crowd Pays Tribute To City's Namesake

In beautiful weather typical of Victoria's usual May 24 weekend, thousands of young Victorians gathered yesterday before the legislative buildings to mark the annual Victoria Day Service of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire.

Service cadets, Boy Scouts, Cubs, Rangers, Girl Guides, Brownies and members of the St. John Ambulance Association stood in uniformed ranks on the lawn, while Grade 6 pupils from schools throughout Greater Victoria marched on the steps.

Behind them was the band of Victoria High School, and on the driveway was the Victoria Schools' Pipe Band. After the anthem, hymns, and a prayer by Rev. Angus Cameron, rector of St. Matthias' Anglican Church, Mrs. Owen P. Fowler, regent of Municipal Chapter of Victoria, IODE, introduced Judge J. B. Clearhue.

Judge Clearhue had a three-fold message for his young audience: Try to improve yourself in every way possible; obey the laws of the land; be just in all your dealings.

He reminded them that, in

Airport Action Awaited

Victoria Chamber of Commerce is still awaiting tangible evidence that the federal government will bring Patricia Bay Airport up to international air terminal standards, president Conway Parrott said yesterday.

He said the chamber has written to Transport Minister Hees and Defence Minister Peckers, asking for information on the proposal to lengthen and strengthen runways and construct a new administration building at Patricia Bay.

NOTHING DEFINITE

"We have had no definite word other than that it is under investigation," Mr. Parrott stated.

The administration building should be replaced "as soon as possible," he added.

SOME WORK DONE

A runway strengthening project at the airport has been under way for some weeks, but no lengthening work is being done.

Mr. Parrott said the chamber has been advised by both Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian Pacific Airlines that they cannot land transcontinental or trans-oceanic flights at Patricia Bay until both aspects of runway improvement have been carried out.

City Meeting May Ease Strike Threat

Settlement in the deadlocked wage dispute between outside workers and city council may come Monday in time to avoid a strike which would upset all city outside services.

City council has called a special meeting for 2:30 p.m. Monday to consider the wage dispute and officials are hoping that an agreement may have been reached by then.

Provincial labor relations officer W. T. McLaughlin is scheduled to try to mediate the dispute Monday morning.

Harold Husband said yesterday that Canada is "disintegrating" as a shipbuilding nation and the industry faces an uncertain future after completion of present contracts.

The president of Victoria Machinery Depot and of the Canadian Shipbuilding and Repair Association made his comments in an interview during the trial run of the recently completed RCN destroyer-escort Terra Nova.

Mr. Husband told guests aboard the new vessel that the future is especially dark for the west coast shipbuilding industry. In Victoria the industry accounts for $9,000,000 of a $23,000,000 annual payroll.

Of 13 vessels under construction for the department of transport, only two are being built on the west coast, Mr. Husband said. Unless new contracts are forthcoming, experienced shipyard workers in B.C. will have to be laid off and will be lost to the industry, he said.

He said Canada faces a hard battle for business in the international market because of high wages. In Japan, shipyard workers received 35 cents an hour while in Victoria they were paid $2.50.

Mr. Husband said the industry is ready to develop anti-submarine submarines if the federal government approves such vessels.

Cmdr. W. H. Willson, commanding officer designate of the Terra Nova, said current emphasis on the atomic submarine has caused the surface navy to be "sold short" by the public. He affirmed faith in Canada's new anti-submarine ships.

Want Whole Cost from B.C.

Island Centres Defeat Stopgap School Motion

'Pawns in Political Game' Says Mayor of Courtenay

By R. O. MARRION
Colonist Staff Reporter

MAPLE BAY—A pessimistic Courtenay delegation failed to persuade Vancouver Island municipal leaders yesterday to ask the province for a stopgap change in sharing of school costs.

Courtenay proposed that the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities urge the government to absorb 100 per cent of the increase in municipal school costs above the average school tax rate in the past five years.

A unanimously approved objective of the Union of B.C. Municipalities is to have the provincial government pay the entire operating cost of schools, and Reeve C. A. P.

Murison of North Cowichan, UBCM president, had expressed hope there would be no resolutions cutting across the union's policies.

"I'm not optimistic about the success of the UBCM at the present time," said Mayor William Moore of Courtenay. "I consider the municipalities are being used as pawns in the political game in the province. If this were election year, I think the UBCM would have more success."

Long-Term Policy

At another point he said his council didn't think the long-range plan of the UBCM would come into being "in the foreseeable future." The plan calls on the senior governments to pay for services to people, such as education, and the municipal property-owners to pay for services to property, such as sewers and protection.

Reeve Murison, however, opposed "diversion when we are trying for the first phase of a long-term policy."

The association, by a strong majority, passed a cut-down version of the Courtenay resolution calling only for maximum publicity for municipalities' concern over the "emergency" in school cost sharing.

Reeve Murison pointed out in an address earlier in the meeting that the UBCM had not asked for nor expected full implementation of its proposals immediately.

Changes made by the provincial government in provincial-municipal finances since the UBCM adopted its policy had been harmful to the municipalities, he said, but a request for a joint committee to study the plan had been granted, and the committee, headed by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black, would meet from June 15 to 17.

A first job in pushing the policy ahead, he said, was "to get the ordinary property owner to realize how much of his tax bill is imposed not by the elected council and school board, but by the provincial government."

Shipbuilders Here Need Contracts

'More Refits' No Answer

Victoria won't take "more refits" as an answer to its request for more shipbuilding contracts for local yards, Mayor Percy Scurrell said yesterday.

The mayor heads a four-man delegation to fly to Ottawa Tuesday morning for meetings with four federal cabinet ministers. They will discuss the city's request for some $13,000,000 in government shipbuilding contracts.

Earlier this week, Defence Minister George Peckers said during a visit to the city that more naval vessels in future will be refitted in local shipyards.

But the mayor said yesterday the offer of more refits will not affect the goals sought by the delegation.

The group is asking that contracts for two freighters, a dredge, and a lighthouse tender be awarded to local shipyards, or at least be shared among the three west coast yards. All are government contracts.

Mayor Scurrell will be accompanied by Chamber of Commerce president G. Conway Parrott, businessman J. Courtney Haddock, and A. W. Toone, secretary-treasurer of Victoria Labor Council.

The delegation will spend about three days in Ottawa, but it is unlikely they will meet with Prime Minister Diefenbaker who will be in Saskatchewan for part of next week.

Meetings have been arranged with Public Works Minister Howard Green, Defence Minister George Peckers, Transport Minister George Hees, and Fisheries Minister Angus MacLean.

Future Gloomy In Shipbuilding

Harold Husband said yesterday that Canada is "disintegrating" as a shipbuilding nation and the industry faces an uncertain future after completion of present contracts.

The president of Victoria Machinery Depot and of the Canadian Shipbuilding and Repair Association made his comments in an interview during the trial run of the recently completed RCN destroyer-escort Terra Nova.

Courtenay Man President

MAPLE BAY—Mayor William Moore of Courtenay was elected president of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities yesterday by acclamation, succeeding Mayor J. T. Dobson of Duncan.

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich was elected vice-president, and chosen as directors were Coun. Donald C. Morton of North Cowichan, Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood of Victoria, Ald. C. M. Blair of Alberni and Mayor Dobson.

The association accepted a Central Saanich invitation to have its next annual meeting there.

Jet Aircraft Not Martians Made Trails

A combination of atmospheric conditions and vapor trails of four jet aircraft in the late evening brought a "Martian" attack of flying saucers to Victoria last night as newspaper and observatory switchboards lit up with curious calls.

Accidents Injure Three

Three Victorians were injured slightly in separate accidents within seven minutes last night.

Two young cyclists suffered only minor injuries.

Paul Garman, 7, of 1045 Vista Heights, was in collision with a car at Quadra and Topaz at 8:30. The car was driven by John Edgar Bartheaux, 4270 Cedar Hill Road.

Five minutes later, Janet McCuaig, 11, of 846 Carrie Street, fell off her bicycle while riding on Craigflower near Styles.

Mrs. Hazel Williams, 3167 Alder, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital for a cut over the left eye received after a car driven by Owen D. Williams, of the same address, was in collision with another car on Blanshard near Hillside, at 8:37 p.m. yesterday. Police said the driver of the other car was Hendry Reigneault of 2664 Blanshard.

Alliance between the CCF and organized labor was strengthened in Victoria last night with the first meeting of a joint committee consisting of delegates from the CCF associations of Greater Victoria and the Victoria Labor Council.

Delegates voted to advance co-ordination of activities between the two groups in provincial politics and to meet at least once a month.

Aged Woman Found Dead

Body of an elderly Oak Bay woman was found floating in Shoal Bay shortly after 1 p.m. yesterday.

Oak Bay firemen recovered the fully-clothed body of Mrs. Lottie Cochran, 80, of 511 Little Avenue. She had been in ill health.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: I'm a newlywed. We will be married seven months tomorrow. The original Mrs. Buttinsky lives next door to my mother. She's been a solid fixture in my mother's kitchen (gossiping night and day) since I was old enough to remember. Although I never liked her, Mom always insisted I be polite and call her Auntie Belle.

I drop by to see Mom almost every day and Auntie Belle is always there. She insists on patting my middle and says "Are you pregnant yet?" This gets me so mad I could chew nails.

It so happens I am two months along but I don't want to tell anyone for a while. How can I get around this nose old woman's question? If I say no, she'll figure out later that I lied.—FURIOUS.

The next time "Mrs. Buttinsky" asks you this all-too-personal (and none of her business) question simply say, "When I'm ready to make an announcement you'll be among the first to know."

Merely because some people have the crust to ask anything doesn't mean you owe them the information.

'To Waste Is to Sin'

Dear Mrs. Landers: I was born and reared in Europe and came to this wonderful country seven years ago. I'm not writing to seek advice, nor to give it. I wish only to express myself on a subject which has caused me deep concern.

The office in which I work as a translator is air-conditioned and beautifully furnished. The management provides writing instruments, paste, all standard office supplies, and the best of mechanical equipment. In Europe one seldom sees this.

It annoys me to watch the employees throw out half-used bottles of paste, almost-new pencils and erasers, carbon paper and bonded stationery by the pound.

We were taught "to waste is to sin." What is there in American culture that seems to smile at wanton disregard for property if people don't pay for it themselves? Can you reply?—MISS SWISS.

Dear Swiss Miss: We Americans are vastly more wasteful than our brothers and sisters in other parts of the world. Perhaps it's because for so long we've had more. Add to this the adage, "That which we get for nothing has no value"—and you have a good answer to your question.

If it's true that the employees throw away almost-new materials, someone from "up front" (like the purchasing agent) should be told. He will be happy to have a friendly talk with "the sinners." Suggest it.

Fighting Since Summer

Dear Ann: My husband and I have been quarrelling since last summer. Please settle this argument.

I have worked for 20 years out of the 26 we've been married. We pool our money, and everything is "ours." Almost every year we take a trip to visit his folks. Last summer I had a big fight with his brother. He said he'd never go home again to visit if I'm there. He lives 200 miles away. We live over 1,700. I figure he can go home almost any time.

My husband just told me he wants to make the trip without me this year. Do you think it's right for him to spend our $400 to go alone? I get along fine with everyone in the family except this one brother. My husband went so far as to say if I went he would stay at home—and this is final. Please give me your frank opinion.—MYLRED

Dear Mylred: Your husband is behaving like a child with a high fever. You should make the trip together. If his brother wants to stay away that's HIS business. But why let him wreck your vacation plans?

A Lovelier You

PERMANENT INSURANCE. Permanent waving methods are almost faultless. The condition of the hair accounts for a failure. Consequently, even good hair should be given several conditioning shampoos prior to waving. It follows if you are planning on a wave before summer sets in, you should start conditioning now.

Treat dry hair with oil shampoos. To ready oily hair, double up on regular shampoos and apply stringent tonic twice weekly. Both types should be given extra brushing and an end trim.

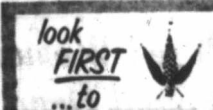

A successful wave also depends on the kind used. All are good, but not for all hair. In selecting a wave, the texture and length of your hair must be considered. So do consult with a salon operator or carefully read the labels on home waves.

In the latter instance, you will find lotions come in varying strengths to control the problems of fine, heavy, grey and tinted hair. To regulate curl size, rods graduate from large to neckline thicknesses. For body and light curl, there are pin-curl and end-curl waves.

Choose wisely and you'll have the most manageable and lasting curl ever!

BULE YOUR WAVES? What's your hair problem? You will find a way to overcome it in my 16-page booklet, Rule Your Waves. Advice includes: beauty treatments for oily, dry, and normal hair; ways to manage unruly locks; how to add color and highlights; tips on cutting, permanents and styling; grooming tricks. Write me in care of this newspaper for your copy, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20c in coin.

Robinson-Michell

Iris, Tulips, Lilac Setting for Bride

A member of a well-known Saanich pioneer family was a principal in a recent wedding in Shady Creek United Church, Keating.

Miss Florence Leola Margaret Michell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard W. Michell, became the wife of Ronald Gordon Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Robinson, Wallace Drive, Royal Oak, in a ceremony performed by Rev. J. G. G. Bompas.

In a setting of blue iris, yellow tulips and white lilac, Miss Michell was married in a flowing white gown of Chantilly lace and taffeta with a lace-covered fitted bodice accented with a square neckline and lily point sleeves. Her fingertip veil was secured with a crown of sparkling seed pearls and sequins, and she carried a cascade of red roses and white carnations.

Her senior attendants, the Misses Bev Thew and Margaret Wheeler chose gowns of blue lace and net over taffeta with white feather hats and white gloves and cascades of white carnations. Miss Cheri Robinson, the groom's sister was junior bridesmaid in yellow taffeta and net with a crescent bouquet of white carnations.

Mr. David McClure was best man with ushers Mr. Francis Michell and Mr. Ken Cruickshank.

The bridal couple received guests in a white archway decorated with spring flowers. Mr. Arthur Lock proposed bridal toasts.

For a motor trip to the southern United States, Mrs. Robinson wore a two-piece floral dress topped with a champagne seal coat and pink roses and carnations en corsage.

They will live at 1211 Goldstream Avenue.

What's Cooking!

By Louise Moore

Have you ever known a youngster or an older for that matter, who did not love ice cream? And a mother who didn't like serving it when the warm summer breezes make the preparation of desserts a chore?

Once considered a party dessert, ice cream is now a daily treat with freezers, and refrigerators and cartons in which you can tote home a quart or a gallon of ice cream in the most delectable flavors, tuck it into the freezer and it's ready for so many occasions.

When you serve ice cream you are dishing out real food value, for ice cream is just another of those excellent dairy products of which we can't have enough. So don't object when the youngsters reach for seconds.

The Dairy Foods Service Bureau has come up with two little "go-alongs" that are easy to make and so very delicious. Serve them a la mode style with ice cream or serve the ice cream balls in a pretty dish surrounded with the dainty fingers. The first is a Norwegian bar, made with good butter, sugar and egg and a generous amount of almonds, so do try them.

Sift together, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 tsp. baking powder, then cut in 1 cup butter with pastry blender. Mix in 1/2 cup fine sugar and 1 beaten egg and mix well. Divide dough in two parts and roll out one part and fit in bottom of a 9-12-inch baking pan.

Combine 1 1/2 cups blanched almonds chopped, 2 cups sifted icing sugar, 1/2 tsp. mace, 1 egg white (unbeaten) and enough milk to make a spreading consistency about 2 tbsp. Spread over bottom layer of cake in pan. Roll out second part of dough and fit into pan on top of filling. Bake in moderate oven (375 F.) 25 to 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Cut into fingers or squares; dust lightly with sifted icing sugar. Delicious with the afternoon tea as well as with ice cream.

BRAZILIAN BANANA TARTS

Peel 4 large fully ripe bananas and mash well with a fork. Put pulp into saucepan with 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 tsp. salt and 1 tbsp. butter. Stir and cook until mixture starts to boil. Remove from heat and cool. When cool whip in 1 tbsp. butter. Stir and cook until mixture starts to boil. Remove from heat and cool. When cool whip in 1 tbsp. lemon juice and 1/2 tsp. ginger. Pour into 12 baked pastry shells. Top with a scoop of ice cream—vanilla or coffee flavored.

Weddings Temporarily Postponed

Elopers Cooling Off

LONDON (UPI) — Two young couples who defied parental displeasure and eloped to Scotland called off their weddings yesterday to return home for a cooling-off period.

Heiress Katharine Dowsett, 20, and playboy Edward Langley, 27, arrived back in London from Gretna Green, Scotland, and said they would meet with Katharine's father, ship-builder Harry Dowsett, to talk over affairs during the week-end.

The other couple, Jeffery Herscheson, 20, and the family maid, 20-year-old Sylvia Polentartutti, of Zurich, Switzerland, also cancelled wedding plans after Jeffery's mother said it would be all right for them to marry if they would wait six months to think it over.

Mrs. Sally Herscheson, wife of a wealthy London silver-smith, dashed off to Gretna Green to talk to the runaways. She later told newsmen: "I am now convinced that Jeffery is very deeply in love with Sylvia and I am more happy about it. I have told Jeffery that if he comes home he can be married in six months' time. If I had not given my consent I would have lost my son and I don't want to do that."

The almost-bride had something to say, too: "I think we have done the right thing and I am very happy about it."

The Herschesons earlier offered their son a generous weekly allowance, a new car and a directorship in the family firm if he would forget Sylvia. He said no.

Dowsett's parental objections to his daughter's marriage to Langley, a Chelsea society figure, had come in the form of legal papers.

He got an English court to issue an order restraining the couple from being married and demanding that Langley return Katharine "to the jurisdiction of the courts."

B.C. Salaries Disappoint Nurses

VANCOUVER (CP)—Salaries paid to nurses in provincial government hospitals were described Friday as very disappointing during closing sessions of the annual meeting of the B.C. Registered Nurses Association.

"The salaries are below what is being paid by the general hospitals," said Evelyn E. Hood of Vancouver, the association's director of personnel services.

Latest agreements with B.C. general hospitals resulted in a basic salary of $280 a month, she said.

Clubs and Societies

Children Headed In Right Path

Twenty pre-school aged children were headed in the right direction the other day.

The children, members of the James Bay Co-Operative kindergarten, were taken on a visit to the public library accompanied by their teacher Mrs. Enid M. Webster.

Library staff members read to them, took them through the various departments and showed them a film "Make Way for the Ducklings."

Each was given a library card which when signed by his parents will allow three books to be borrowed every two weeks.

All the little readers will be entering first grade in September.

Palsy Clinic

Final plans for the rummage sale to be held on Saturday, May 30, in the CCF Hall at 8 a.m., were discussed at the recent meeting of the WA to the Cerebral Palsy Clinic. Mrs. J. J. Feeley, convener, announced that rummage may be left at the clinic or will be picked up by phoning EV 4-8491.

A garden party will be held at the home of Mrs. T. Jacobsen, 335 Plaskett Place, Esquimalt, on Saturday, June 13 with Mrs. E. H. Carson, convener. It was reported that receipts from the recent bingo totalled $124 and that $2,300 was raised on the clinic's tag day. Next meeting will be Wednesday, June 10 instead of June 17.

Choral Group

At the recent annual meeting of the Victoria Choral Society, Mr. H. S. Holman was elected president with the following officers: Mr. P. Van der Goes, vice-president; Mrs. H. S. Holman, secretary; Mr. H. D. Paul, treasurer; Mrs. K. Greenwood, librarian; Mrs. F. Nattrass, social convener; Mr. D. M. Carrey and Mr. P. J. Daley, committee members. Anyone interested may call the secretary at GR 7-2534.

Trumpet Toots For Fashions In September

It may seem a little early to toot the trumpet for September fashions with the summery weather just arrived.

But if Thursday's informal showing at the Union Club is any indication, autumn clothes this year will reflect the exact mood of fall days in color and breezy styling.

Gathered for the show were Victoria's leading clothes experts with John Lawler and Tom Parker, of Dupont of Canada, as hosts.

Key colors for the fall are muted and dusty and stem from the smoky shading of ancient hunting tartans and Etruscan art. Expect to see a lot of grey tinged with green, blue or brown.

Browns will range from a gold bronze to camel; deep red wine, sparkling burgundy and greyed rose in the red range, grey, green, bronze green, smoke green and blue cool, tin and blue grey will round out the color calendar.

The demise of the chemise was seen in the natural waisted frocks shown. Pleats are back in many summer skirts and will be seen in fall stylings. Fabrics will be orlon and wool jersey in a percentage mixture.

In blouses, look for lace, large collars and full sleeves. Sweaters will be more traditional in their styling with interest at the neckline, buttons at collar or hem and colored to match or blend with skirts. "Bulky" will be worn in shaggy dog mixtures.

One particular ski sweater was of interest in a frontier style of grey mix with a voluminous turtleneck and shoulder shawl deeply fringed.

New sweaters will be a plushy-looking fabric with the feeling of velvet and another similar to the banlon in a positively silky material. Since tinted hosiery has caught fire so well, producers will be showing much stronger shades next fall and a variety of "real weird" knits.

Show stopper was a pale blue full-length negligee in tricot lavished with floral Swiss embroidery at hem, wide neckline and sleeves. With a tiny rip! model Helen Bernes peeled off the flounce of the gown with the aid of that new "burr" fastener, Velcro, and she was wearing a less formal outfit for lounging.

Love Laughs at Lock-ups

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Being picked up and jailed on his wedding day didn't stop Charles Breeden, who was arrested on a charge of assaulting a 17-year-old girl, while on the way with his fiancée, Shirley Mae Tipton, 16, to pick up a marriage licence.

Breeden was let out of his cell long enough to be married in the sheriff's office.

The young bride said, "I love him very much and will be waiting when he gets out no matter how long."

My Last Words

Which of My Disciples Can Carry The Torch When I Am Gone?

Bungling Outcome Of Nation in Rush

It is a fact that we Germans always tangle everything through being forced to act in a hurry.

With us, to act swiftly is always to act with precipitation. To acquire the gift of patience, we should have both time and space, and we have neither.

The Russians are lucky in possessing both quite apart from that inclination towards plectidly which is a characteristic trait of the Slav temperament.

SHORT LIFE
To help me I have but a realistic idealism, based on tangible facts, from which flows promises that can certainly be fulfilled, but which forbids me to promise the moon.

Where others have all eternity at their disposal, I have but a few short, miserable years.

MAN PREDESTINED
Those others know that they will be succeeded by yet others who will carry on where they left off, ploughing with precision exactly the same furrow with exactly the same plough. I have now reached the stage where I wonder whether among my immediate successors there will be found a man

Lush Salt Spring Spot

Island Retreat For All Sects

British Columbia's first multi-denominational religious retreat will be constructed on 2½ acres of lush, wooded land on St. Mary's Lake, Salt Spring Island, at a cost of $100,000.

Bishop D. A. G. Ranklör of Victoria's Church of Our Lord announced the project and its sponsorship by the Reformed Episcopal Church of Canada. Bishop Ranklör, who presides over a congregation of 3,000 in British Columbia, said only qualification for accommodation at the retreat will be that applicants must be Christians.

They may be businessmen, housewives, clergymen or foreign missionaries on furlough. The retreat will consist of as many as 12 cottages and a main lodge and will accommodate about 40 people.

A chapel to be erected on the property will be available to all Christian faiths.

"Religious retreats are a new concept in Canada but they have been operating in the United States and other parts of the world for years," Bishop Ranklör said. "This will be a place in which Christians may withdraw for spiritual communion.
"You will not find a poker game going on there, but it definitely will not be a place where everyone goes about with long faces and afraid to talk above a whisper," he added.

Series Lecturer

Mrs. Helen Wood Birnie will deliver a series of lectures here on "Communism, a Challenge to Christianity." First lectures may be heard Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. at the Evangelistic Temple, Blanshard and Queens. Series will continue Tuesday through Friday at 8 p.m. until June 4.

stable, so versatile as the German people, and a people who go, according to circumstances, from one extreme to the other.

ENSURE FUTURE
From my own point of view, the ideal thing would have been firstly to ensure the future existence of the German people, then to form a youth imbued deeply with the National Socialist doctrine—and then to have left it to the generations of the future to wage the inevitable war, unless, of course, our enemies recoiled when they found themselves faced with the newly acquired might of the German people.

In this way, Germany would have been well equipped both materially and morally. She would have at her disposal an administration, a foreign policy, and an army, all moulded from infancy in the principles of National Socialism.

OPENED EYES
The tasks I have undertaken of raising the German people to the place in the world that is their due is unfortunately not a task that can be accomplished by a single man or in a single generation.

But I have at least opened their eyes to their inherent greatness and I have inspired them to exaltation at the thought of Germans in one great indestructible Reich. I have sown the good seed. I have made the German people realize the significance of the struggle they are waging for their very existence.

One day the harvest will come, and nothing on earth will be able to prevent it from coming. The German people is a young and strong people, a people with its future before it.

TOMORROW: "It will be America against Russia now."

Vancouver Swims Again At Cost of $40,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—It will cost Vancouver about $40,000 to use its beaches this summer. The money will buy more than 500,000 pounds of chlorine, which will be released at a sewage outlet into English Bay that was the main cause of the pollution that stopped swimming last year.

A $65,000 purifying plant has been built at the outlet. It will grind sewer solids to minute particles and the chlorinating equipment will kill bacteria.

U.S. to Pass Trucks

Canada Wins Shrimp 'War'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The treasury Friday agreed to permit Canadian trucks carrying goods from Communist China to travel over United States roads en route to other points in Canada.

The cargoes will be locked up and placed under bond for the trip over U.S. highways. Such goods cannot be delivered to any point in the U.S. because of a law prohibiting imports from Communist China.

The state department recommended the action after the stopping of some Canadian trucks by U.S. customs agents drew criticism in Canada. The trucks stopped carried shrimp which had been picked up from ships at Vancouver for delivery to Eastern Canada.

Canadian trucks often use U.S. highways in the north-west to travel from one Canadian city to another.

Pre-Dawn Plea

Father 'Saves' Killer

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Charles Starkweather gained at least two more weeks of life Friday when a federal judge heeded his father's desperate, pre-dawn plea and stayed the mass slayer's execution 90 minutes before he was to die.

Judge Richard Robinson ordered the delay so there could be further court inquiry into Guy Starkweather's charges his son's constitutional rights have been violated by his lack of an attorney.

The Starkweathers fired the lawyers nearly a year ago because they contended the youth was insane when he killed 11 persons in December, 1957, and January, 1958.

Word of the stay reached Nebraska prison only 20 minutes before the youth's head and legs were to be shaved before electrocution.

Agents Nab Anti-Castro Arms Plane

MIAMI (UPI)—Eight U.S. customs agents who lay in wait all night arrested 11 persons yesterday loading weapons aboard a big transport plane. The guns and ammunition allegedly were intended for a counter-revolutionary plot against Cuba.

The Dominican Republic consul general, Augusto Ferrando, surrendered voluntarily after the agents made the arrests. Ferrando, released under $25,000 bond, was accused of conspiracy to bribe U.S. customs agents and conspiracy to illegally ship arms.

Revised Law May Cut Competition

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is drafting revisions in the anti-combines legislation to allow certain types of competition-eliminating business mergers, it was learned Friday.

Well-informed sources say framers of the new legislation are encountering some difficulty in writing this modification into the long-standing principle of anti-combines law that maintenance of business competition is its chief purpose.

FULTON SPEECH

Some idea of what the government has in mind was given in a recent Toronto speech by Justice Minister Fulton.

Among principles and purposes he said the government intends to retain in the legislation is "by maintaining competition, to bring about the most effective allocation of resources and the highest possible standard of living."

PRICE CONTROL

Informants say elimination of competition for the purpose of getting control of prices, restraining trade or other factors detrimental to the public interest will still be illegal under the legislation.

But they say the government plans to ask Parliament to approve a modification which would add to the existing principle—that free competition is in itself in the best interests of the public—a qualification as to what kind of free competition is desirable and what isn't.

WHOLESALE PRICES

Other changes to be proposed, sources say, include a provision aimed at penalizing businesses that engage in misleading advertising, such as misrepresenting prices as being wholesale prices.

Centenary Best Thing For Indians

VANCOUVER—B.C.'s centennial celebrations "did more for the Indians of the province than any other single thing since the white man came," an Indian chief says.

Annual report of the B.C. Indian Advisory Committee quoted the unidentified chief and said B.C. Indians mingled with whites in 1958 "to an extent which has never been known before."

Queen Declares School 'Remedy'

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth yesterday gave the 700 boys of St. Paul's school a "remedy"—their first four-day holiday in 450 years.

The Queen and Prince Philip were touring the ancient school when student Paddy McCowen, 15, broached the delicate subject.

"May I ask Your Majesty to invoke the founder's statutes and be graciously pleased to desire a remedy?" Paddy asked.

The Queen had done her homework. School high master A. N. Gilkes had explained that strict John Colet, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, founded the school in 1509 and ordered that the boys would never get remedy (school term for holiday) unless the monarch, an archbishop or bishop so ordered.

Queen Elizabeth, whose 10-year-old son Prince Charles has a boy's royal love of holidays, looked at the hopeful Paddy.

"High master, I desire four remedies," the Queen said. The 700 boys of St. Paul's School were still cheering the Queen and the four holidays when the Queen stepped from the room.

Later the Queen inspected the old records of a former St. Paul's student who never benefitted from the royal remedies. Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery.

The Queen laughed when

Montgomery Again Returns to Attack

OXFORD, England (Reuters)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said Friday night the West has no one to lead it in negotiations with Russia to end the cold war.

Britain's outspoken war-time commander, whose recent criticism of American leadership touched off a furore on both sides of the Atlantic, returned to his attack on Western politicians in the last two lectures at Oxford University.

DEGREE OF UNITY

Montgomery said the Western alliance never would reach the necessary degree of unity for successful negotiations with Russia without leadership.

"And at the moment, there is no obvious acceptable leader in sight—if by leader we mean someone who is able and willing to give clear and sensible guidance to the whole group and in whom all the member nations have absolute confidence."

REALISTIC FACTORS

Montgomery, although he conceded that few military leaders make good politicians, advanced six "realistic factors" which must be accepted by both sides before East-West tension can be brought to an end:

1. The West must realize that Russia has no intention of launching a nuclear war on the West.
2. The West will never attack the East.
3. It is illogical to expect Russia to agree that a united Germany armed with nuclear weapons can be integrated into the Western alliance—in any case, the reunification of Germany is not practical politics at present.
4. It is illogical to try to solve the German problem without first solving the problem of European security.
5. It is illogical to work on the assumption that the East German government does not exist.
6. It is illogical to work on the assumption that the true government of China is in Formosa.

NATO CRITICIZED

He criticized some NATO nations for failing to regard the struggle against international communism as a world-wide one and not just confined to the NATO area.

"Because of their lack of vision the West is badly placed at the present time in what is essentially a global problem."

"The difficulty is that there is in NATO a large group of nations with purely parochial interests which are confined to the NATO area. There is another small group with worldwide interests. It has not been possible to hammer out a common policy between these two groups."

Herter Tries Again

GENEVA (CP)—U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter made a new bid to the Soviet Union Friday to resume the long-stalled general disarmament negotiations.

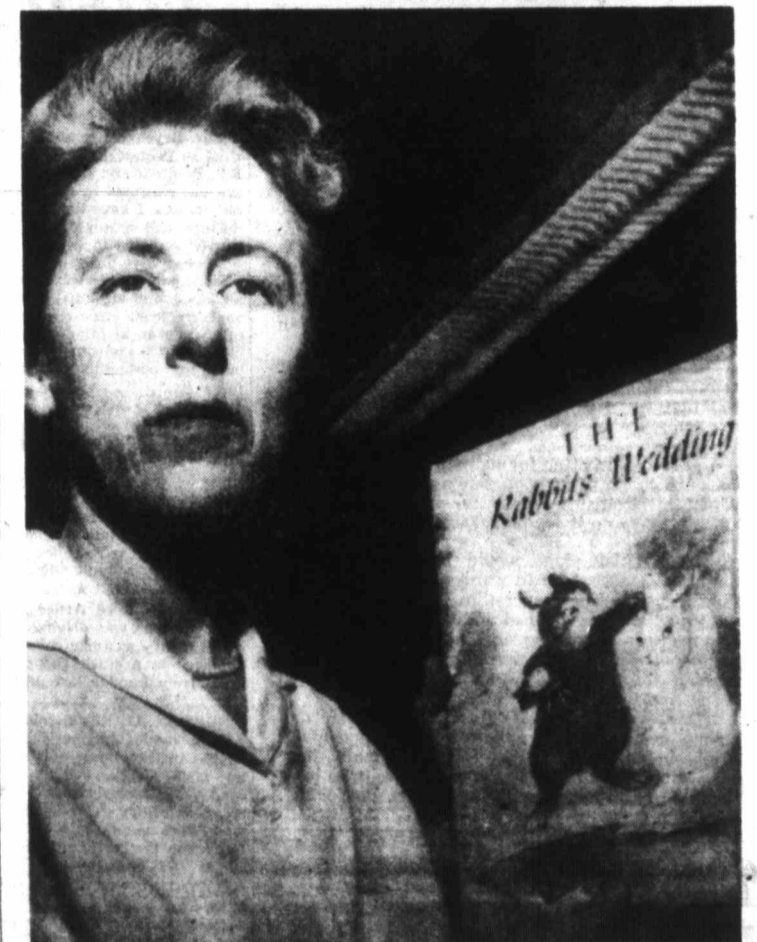

Herter told Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in the Big Four conference that the United States does not irrevocably link disarmament measures with German unification.

Herter appealed to Gromyko to accept the Western peace plan linking German reunification with successive stages of a system for European security and a start on global disarmament.

But he made plain that the United States is prepared to resume the general disarmament talks—which stalled in the United Nations two years ago—apart from Big Four efforts to bridge the East-West differences over Germany.

Mixed Bunnies That Caused Uproar

Controversial children's book "The Rabbit's Wedding," in hands of Miss Emily Reed, Alabama's director of public libraries.—(AP Photofax.)

Alabaman Aggravated

'Rabbit Not White? Burn That Book!'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—An Alabama state legislator said Friday a children's book depicting the marriage of a white girl rabbit to a black boy rabbit should be burned.

State Sen. E. O. Eddins said the picture book should be "taken off the shelves and burned" even though it is intended for pre-school-age children.

"There are many other books of the same nature and others that are Communistic which should be burned as well," Eddins said.

NOT IN OPEN

The children's picture book, "The Rabbit's Wedding," intended for children under five years of age, has been removed from the open shelves of Alabama public libraries because of segregation criticism.

Garth Williams, author of the book, said he was "completely unaware that animals with white fur were considered blood relations of white human beings." He said the rabbits had contrasting colors for pictorial reasons.

Emily Wheelock Reed, director of the Alabama library service division, said the book had not been banned.

"That would not be morally right," she said. "We have put it on the reserve shelf where the public can get it by request only."

She said the reserve shelf carries books which might be considered offensive for reasons of morality or obscenity. "Lolita" is one of these.

Miss Reed said she was surprised at the criticism. "Personally," she said, "I like the book."

Power Subsidy Urged

Island Milked By Commission?

By Colonist Staff Reporter

MAPLE BAY—Vancouver Island municipal representatives called on the provincial government yesterday to subsidize B.C. Power Commission operations in low-return districts.

The Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities passed a resolution which said the commission was making a profit in island districts far in excess of the margin utilities normally were allowed to make up for losses in other districts. (See other stories, Page 13).

MOST UNJUST

"The voice of the Vancouver Island municipalities might help convince the government that it would be most unjust if any more were put on our power rates," said Mayor William Moore of Courtenay.

Another Courtenay resolution, passed by the association, asked the provincial government to "equalize" all its laws regarding land assessment.

SEPARATE ASSESSMENTS

Reeve C. A. P. Murlison of North Cowichan said a change in the Assessment Equalization Act made at the last session of the legislature appeared to require municipalities to have two separate assessments of property, one under that act for school taxation and the other under the Municipal Act for general taxation.

He described the change as "a piece of nonsense no less excusable for being unintentional."

The delegates also approved: A resolution, introduced by Coun. Fred Hawes of Oak Bay, calling on the Union of B.C. Municipalities executive to try to find a solution to the problem of people living free of property taxation in trailers while making demands on schools and other services.

A resolution, introduced by Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich, calling for a study of provincial and municipal welfare costs since a new method of sharing went into effect—"I suspect we are paying part of their share."

Ottawa Inks April in Black

OTTAWA (CP)—The government started its 1959-60 fiscal year in the black Finance Minister Fleming reports.

In April, first month of the fiscal year, there was a small surplus of $1,400,000 after revenues of $299,900,000 and expenditures of $298,500,000.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

MY dog returned home last Sunday after escaping from the yard and staying out for five days. He was noticeably thinner. He whined and wriggled with pleasure at being home.

For some days we had a fine-looking female golden Labrador that persisted in attaching herself to us, in spite of all our efforts to send her away. She eventually became discouraged when we repelled her attempts to climb in the car with us. We went away for some hours, and returned to find that she had gone. But we still have a small black puppy as an intermittent guest. We often take him home. A few minutes later he is scratching on our door again.

A Victoria resident (whose name I withhold) writes to rebuke me for having a "couldn't care less" attitude toward my dog.

"... If people are not sufficiently interested to spend a well-invested sum in sending the animal to the veterinarian for the simple operation which would cure roving propensities, then those persons should not have a dog at all.

"There are also those feckless and selfish persons who keep an unsprayed female dog. The mongrel puppies in such circumstances are... given away indiscriminately... Any humane society can tell you the sad tale of these unwanted waifs...

"I hope before you accept another dog you will have the decency and common humanity to have it neutered..."

There is some sense to what this critic says. I believe people should be willing to spend money on their dogs. Personally, I have taken my dog to the veterinarian for distemper shots and other needs. The veterinarian has always been patient about waiting for his money.

I took in my last dog, a female, and had her spayed. But I never liked doing it. I have always felt that there is something barbaric in depriving any creature of one of the natural functions of its life.

It is often better for human comfort and convenience to have such operations performed. But why pretend that we do it for the benefit of the animals? We do it for ourselves.

Dogs, if left alone, would prefer a rough-and-tumble existence, free to wander and reproduce as they pleased. Their ancestors lived in that way, until man and dog formed an alliance. Much later, man pampered the dog and began to control the dog population, because the sight of too many dogs running through gardens and rooting in rubbish heaps made man feel uncomfortable.

One reason why I stay away from formal animal welfare work is that there are too many cranks in the field. Luckily for the animals, there are also numbers of well-balanced people, who have the patience to haggle with the cranks. As for me, I haven't.

Labor Names Asked For New UIC Slate

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Starr has asked for a new slate of candidates for the Unemployment Insurance Commission advisory committee, three of whose labor members resigned in protest recently.

Terms of the chairman, four labor nominees and four from employers expire June 27. Mr. Starr wrote recently to find out if the present members will be renominated and hopes to get the suggestions of the Canadian Labor Congress.

The committee came into the news recently when the CLC accused Mr. Starr of ignoring CLC nominees to fill a vacancy. The labor resignations followed.

Cecil Evans, general secretary of the Canadian Friends' service committee in Toronto, will speak Monday at 8 p.m. in the Friends' meeting hall, 1531 Fern Street. His topic will be: "With the Quaker Team at the United Nations."

The Commons gave final and unanimous approval to a bill incorporating Canada's first privately-owned exports finance corporation, the Export Finance Corporation of Canada, which will have a lending capacity of $50,000,000 to provide credit to foreign customers on a cash basis.

Flexibility to protect the public interest and to maintain healthy conditions in the oil and natural gas industry is the objective of the government's proposed national energy board, Trade Minister Churchill said.

CCF House Leader Hazen Argue said oil and gas speculators, once the "pampered pets" of C. D. Howe, have become the "dear dillies" of Prime Minister Diefenbaker. He was criticizing proposed national energy board.

Justice Minister Fulton gave notice of legislation to increase the number of judges in Quebec, Alberta and B.C., including two more for the B.C. Supreme Court.

Drastic Nike Cuts, Lag in Bomarc 'Security Menace'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The army said Friday a proposed drastic cut in its Nike-Hercules anti-aircraft missile program menaces the security of the United States.

It took this stand in answering questions about the action of the Senate armed services committee a week ago proposing a slash of about three-quarters in the planned number of launching sites for the nuclear-tipped Nike-Hercules.

The answers, furnished by an army spokesman, included not only criticism of the Senate committee recommendation—something rare for one of the armed forces to do—but also a sharp rap at the air force's competing Bomarc missile system.

The army's stand has special significance for Canada, which is to have two Bomarc bases in Eastern Canada in the future.

Earlier this year the Canadian government announced that it intended to introduce the Bomarc into the Canadian air defence system and cancel the Avro Arrow development program.

The Senate committee's revision of a military construction bill already passed by the House of Representatives, the army spokesman said, "would leave serious gaps in the nation's air defence missile system in the United States and Hawaii."

The army spokesman complained that the Bomarc, under development, isn't in the air defence system and if things go well "the earliest date when Bomarc can begin to assume a significant role in defence is at least two years away."

Conciliation Unwanted

Wicks 'Reversal' Appealed by IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America has asked Labor Minister Wicks to reconsider the decision to send its wage dispute with the forest industry to a conciliation board.

In a wire to the minister the union said the only practical alternative to a board is a conciliation officer's report recommending a settlement.

The 30,000-member union Thursday called a special convention for May 30 to consider a policy-makers recommendation that a June 16 strike deadline be postponed.

The union accepted the conciliation board ordered by Mr. Wicks because he said it had been assured by the minister that before a conciliation officer were not being conducted in good faith.

The union, which seeks a 20 per cent wage increase over the present basic rate of $1.72 an hour, criticized the move, saying it had been assured by the minister that a conciliation board would not be necessary.

Meanwhile, the 6,000-member Vancouver IWA local said in a wire to Mr. Wicks its members are angry because of what it said was his failure to keep his word on conciliation.

The wire, signed by local president Syd Thompson, said it appears Mr. Wicks is trying to put management in a more favorable position in contract negotiations by delaying a settlement.

The present contract with employers expires June 16. It is expected conciliation proceedings will last past that date.

'HoldLine On Dock Wages'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Pacific Lumber Exporters Association asked waterfront employers Friday to hold the wage line "whatever the consequences" in negotiations with longshoremen.

Employers and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union are discussing a new contract for 16,000 stevedores on the U.S. west coast. The contract expires June 15 and the ILWU is asking an increase of 20 cents an hour.

43-Acre Park Given to B.C.

PORT ALBERNI—A 43-acre lakeshore park was presented to the provincial government in a simple ceremony here yesterday.

Recreation and Conservation Minister E. C. Westwood committed his department to further development and maintenance of Smith's Landing Park in an acceptance speech after presentation of the deed by Ralph M. Shaw, president of MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd.

Mr. Shaw pointed out that the land, bought by Bloedel, Stewart and Welch Ltd. some 15 years ago, is an integral part of the life of Alberni Valley residents. It's history of hospitality dated from the 1880s when George Smith, original owner, had welcomed early residents of the district to his lakeside farm. The tradition had continued through years when the property had reverted to government ownership. Under ownership of MacMillan & Bloedel the park has continued to be developed. Mr. Shaw gave credit to Trevor Goodall, official custodian of the property, for planning and developing the facilities. Last year, a total of 804 camping groups and 81,000 picnickers had used the park, Mr. Shaw said.

There is a waterfront of more than 3,000 feet, a swimming beach, two boat-launching ramps, forest trails and campfire areas. The park is the site of the petroglyphs which have drawn many tourists to a rock cliff near Sproat River.

Mr. Shaw said that the carvings are, in the opinion of anthropologists and archaeological authorities the work of a now extinct tribe that lived on Sproat Lake more than a century and a half ago.

In representing officers and shareholders of M & B in presentation of the deed, Mr. Shaw said he was joining with Mr. Westwood and the provincial government in dedicating Smith's Landing Park for the purpose of public recreation in perpetuity.

Robert W. Service

Bench Will Recall Bard's Duncan Stay

DUNCAN—A stone bench is being built to commemorate the stay here of the late Robert W. Service, the bard of the Yukon, during the 1900s.

Work started last week at Cowichan Bay near the Koksilah River within 100 yards of the spot where the poet read papers to the Indians and served farmers in a small store.

He came here as a "mud pup" to work on a farm. Later he gave it up and moved to Victoria, where he worked in a bank before going to the Yukon.

Work is being done by members of Prevost Post, Native Sons, near the cabin they had erected last year marking the spot where Sir James Douglas landed in 1862 with boat loads of the first Cowichan settlers.

Robert Evans is in charge of the memorial construction.

Car Launched With Boat

PARKSVILLE—D. Hunter launched his car instead of his boat at French Creek boat basin.

The Port Alberni man had backed his car and trailer up to the ramp and was preparing to take off the boat when the brakes gave way.

The car was completely submerged, but Steve Silverton, proprietor of French Creek Fishing Camp quickly pulled it out with a tractor, and after a checkup at a local garage, Mr. Hunter drove it home to Port Alberni.

QUALICUM BEACH—Carrying out his recent warning to traffic law violators that they would be dealt with more severely in future, Magistrate Thomas Hadfield imposed a fine of $100, or 30 days, on Norman George Powling of Duncan for operating a motor vehicle while his licence was under suspension.

Powling was also fined $25 or 10 days for using another person's driving licence.

Falls Provincial Park was reached when Recreation and Conservation Minister E. C. Westwood and parks director H. G. McWilliam and members of the provincial-federal plan for park improvements. A topographical map is already prepared, he said, and planning will start on new footpaths, picnic sites and campsites.

Mr. Westwood declared that a thorough renovation project is planned for this fall under the provincial-federal plan for park improvements. A topographical map is already prepared, he said, and planning will start on new footpaths, picnic sites and campsites.

President of the Chamber, Robert Adderley, expressed satisfaction in the result of the tour arranged by the organization following complaints of deterioration of the park.

Sub-Killer Smokes Without Belching

New smoke-screening equipment can shield the vessel or landing parties within seconds. On older vessels smoke was belched through the ship's funnels,

"which was rather impractical," a navy official said. The Terra Nova laid a smoke screen near Trial Island.

Floating Electronics Laboratory

New Sub-Killer Bares Her Fangs

One of Canada's newest sub-killers, HMCS Terra Nova, bared her fangs yesterday in the waters of Juan de Fuca Strait.

The modern floating "electronics laboratory" demonstrated all her talents, from radar-controlled multi-firing guns to high-speed turns.

POWER FOR CITY

The trim 366-foot craft generates enough electrical power to supply a city of 10,000.

Newspapermen and ship-building officials aboard the vessel yesterday witnessed a display of sonar detection efficiency and modern sub-killing tactics.

RECENTLY FITTED

The $20,000,000 destroyer escort, only recently fitted and undergoing final builders' trials, performed like a newborn rattlesnake with two sets of three-inch multi-firing guns, electrically accurate "super" depth charge mortars and homing torpedoes.

A complement of fully qualified officers and men who are classed not as sailors but as technicians can detect an enemy and destroy it within minutes in conditions from tropical heat to extreme Arctic cold.

KILLING EFFICIENCY

A new pride of Canada's modern navy, the Terra Nova was built for crewman luxury, detection and killing efficiency.

Skipper Cmdr. William H. Wilson, a veteran destroyer "old man," said his vessel has a "slight disadvantage in warfare against modern submarines but if handled properly can also be a menace to submarines."

SHIELD FORM COVER

The complete wartime complement of 16 officers and 260 men operate the ship from shielded cover in case of nuclear attack. Everything from how to stern is electrically operated.

Naval officials report only that the ship will speed at "more than 25 knots," but unofficial sources estimate top speed at 40 knots.

In conjunction with a helicopter escort, an enemy submarine could be corralled in minutes with the aid of banks of complex sonar devices.

BELCH BLANKET

If called on to support a landing party a new type of smoke screen can be "belched" to blanket the whole area.

During yesterday's trials the vessel was under control by the builders, Victoria Machinery Depot, who first laid the keel in 1952.

She will be officially turned over to the navy in June and will later leave to serve in the Atlantic Command.

PARKSVILLE — W. G. Symons, Jack Booth and James Campbell have been appointed by the Mount Arrowsmith Canadian Legion Branch to organize a Miss Parksville district beauty contest.

Like Lady She Is, She Arrived Late

Thousands of Victorians gathered on the Dallas Road waterfront yesterday afternoon to watch the final test run of Canada's new destroyer-escort, the Terra Nova.

Few of them, on the grass or in cars parked solidly from Beacon Hill Park to beyond Clover Point, seemed to mind the ship being late.

It had been announced she'd be off Clover Point by 1.30 p.m. for speed runs, smoke-screening and gun tests. She came racing up just before 3 p.m.

A navy spokesman gave this explanation.

Terra Nova had first of all to finish off one trial run for gun-marking, and had to fire mortars.

Unfortunately, at the time there were three merchantmen out in the strait, and the ferry Kalkala was making a run between Victoria and Port Angeles.

Sons, Fathers Aboard

Many of those watching had a personal interest in the Terra Nova. Husbands, sons, fathers were aboard her—VMD workmen who'd built her, and who, for the most part, were laid off last night.

Mrs. J. A. King, 4139 Carey, said her husband was a welder who'd been working on the Terra Nova since she was started.

"He feels she's his more than the navy's," Mrs. King said. Helping her with pictures was her mother, Mrs. M. H. Baird, visiting from the Arrow Lake country of B.C.

W. H. Mitchell, 1358 Montevideo, was patiently waiting for the vessel to lay a smoke screen.

"My son Ronald is a VMD

engineer aboard, and he told me he'd have something to do with the smoke screen. They'd better produce it, or I'll have something to say to him," said Mr. Mitchell. Five minutes later, the screen was laid down.

English-born Mrs. W. Markiewicz, 338 Simcoe, who met her Polish-born husband in the Old Country during the war, was one of those sorry to see the ship leave VMD.

"My husband's an engine fitter, and has been working on her for about a year. I don't know what he'll do after today."

"However," Mrs. Markiewicz went on, "it's not likely we'll get a chance to go aboard the ship, so it's nice to see her in action this way."

Airport Action Awaited

Victoria Chamber of Commerce is still awaiting tangible evidence that the federal government will bring Patricia Bay Airport up to international air terminal standards, president Conway Parrott said yesterday.

He said the chamber has written to Transport Minister Hees and Defence Minister Peak, asking for information on the proposal to lengthen and strengthen runways and construct a new administration building at Patricia Bay.

"We have had no definite word other than that it is under investigation," Mr. Parrott stated.

The administration building should be replaced "as soon as possible," he added.

SOME WORK DONE

A runway strengthening project at the airport has been under way for some weeks, but no lengthening work is being done.

Mr. Parrott said the chamber has been advised by both Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian Pacific Airlines that they cannot land transcontinental or trans-oceanic flights at Patricia Bay until both aspects of runway improvement have been carried out.

City Meeting May Ease Strike Threat

Settlement in the deadlocked wage dispute between outside workers and city council may come Monday in time to avoid a strike which would upset all city outside services.

City council has called a special meeting for 2.30 p.m. Monday to consider the wage dispute and officials are hoping that an agreement may have been reached by then.

Provincial labor relations officer W. T. McLaughlin is scheduled to try to mediate the dispute Monday morning.

Crowd Pays Tribute To City's Namesake

In beautiful weather typical of Victoria's usual May 24 weekend, thousands of young Victorians gathered yesterday before the legislative buildings to mark the annual Victoria Day Service of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire.

Service cadets, Boy Scouts, Cubs, Rangers, Girl Guides, Brownies and members of the St. John Ambulance Association stood in uniformed ranks on the lawn, while Grade 6 pupils from schools throughout Greater Victoria massed on the steps.

Behind them was the band of Victoria High School, and on the driveway was the Victoria Schools' Pipe Band.

After the anthem, hymns, and a prayer by Rev. Angus Cameron, rectors of St. Matthias' Anglican Church, Mrs. Owen P. Fowler, regent of Municipal Chapter of Victoria, IODE, introduced Judge J. B. Clearhue.

Judge Clearhue had a three-fold message for his young audience: Try to improve yourself in every way possible; obey the laws of the land; be just in all your dealings.

He reminded them that, in the eyes of the law, they were infants until they reached the age of 21, and must obey their parents.

Similarly Canada was an infant until 1947, and had to obey the laws made for her by Great Britain, her parent.

With 1947, however, Canada "grew up," and her citizens became Canadian citizens "and proud of it."

While bands played "Land of Hope and Glory," a group of tiny pupils laid wreaths at the base of Queen Victoria's monument, before "God Save the Queen" spelled the service's end.

Want Whole Cost from B.C.

Island Centres Defeat Stopgap School Motion

'Pawns in Political Game' Says Mayor of Courtenay

By R. O. MARRION
Colonist Staff Reporter

MAPLE BAY—A pessimistic Courtenay delegation failed to persuade Vancouver Island municipal leaders yesterday to ask the province for a stopgap change in sharing of school costs.

Courtenay proposed that the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities urge the government to absorb 100 per cent of the increase in municipal school costs above the average school tax rate in the past five years.

A unanimously approved objective of the Union of B.C. Municipalities is to have the provincial government pay the entire operating cost of schools, and Reeve C. A. P.

Murison of North Cowichan, UBCM president, had expressed hope there would be no resolutions cutting across the union's policies.

"I'm not optimistic about the success of the UBCM at the present time," said Mayor William Moore of Courtenay. "I consider the municipalities are being used as pawns in the political game in the province. If this were election year, I think the UBCM would have more success."

Long-Term Policy

At another point he said his council didn't think the long-range plan of the UBCM would come into being "in the foreseeable future." The plan calls on the senior government to pay for services to people, such as education, and the municipal property-owners to pay for services to property, such as sewers and protection.

Reeve Murison, however, opposed "diversion when we are trying for the first phase of a long-term policy."

The association, by a strong majority, passed a cut-down version of the Courtenay resolution calling only for maximum publicity for municipalities' concern over the "emergency" in school cost sharing.

Reeve Murison pointed out in an address earlier in the meeting that the UBCM had not asked for nor expected full implementation of its proposals immediately.

Changes made by the provincial government in provincial municipal finances since the UBCM adopted its policy had been harmful to the municipalities, he said, but a request for a joint committee to study the plan had been granted, and the committee, headed by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black, would meet from June 15 to 17.

A first job in pushing the policy ahead, he said, was "to get the ordinary property owner to realize how much of his tax bill is imposed not by the elected council and school board, but by the provincial government."

New President Courtenay Man

MAPLE BAY—Mayor William Moore of Courtenay was elected president of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities yesterday by acclamation, succeeding Mayor J. T. Dobson of Duncan.

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich was elected vice-president, and chosen as directors were Coun. Donald C. Morton of North Cowichan, Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood of Victoria, Ald. C. M. Blair of Alberni and Mayor Dobson.

The association accepted a Central Saanich invitation to have its next annual meeting there.

Around the Island

Stevedores Back at Work

PORT ALBERNI — Stevedore crews returned to work at this Vancouver Island port yesterday after an injunction prohibiting picketing was obtained by employers.

The injunction came after local 503 of the longshoremen's and warehousemen's union threw up picket lines near the premises of local shipping companies Thursday, in protest over Shipping Federation of B.C. action in changing work gangs from one ship to another, contrary to union regulations.

Lang Mackie of the port union office said the action was in the nature of a lock-out, not a strike.

"In my opinion the action of the federation in locking out was a considered move to implement Bill 43," Mr. Mackie said.

Legal argument over the injunction will be heard in British Columbia supreme court in Vancouver at 10.30 a.m. Monday.

More than 170 longshoremen were involved in the dispute.

Six deep-sea freighters are tied up in the harbor. A German vessel, the Torsen, entered the port Thursday but left without cargo because it had to comply with a tight shipping schedule.

Two of the freighters are waiting to be loaded at the nearby pulp and paper mill. Others are scheduled to take on cargoes of lumber.

DUNCAN — Cowichan's yachting season starts tonight with a dance in the Yacht Club at Maple Bay.

Tomorrow there will be a sail-past during the afternoon. Boats are expected from Victoria, Seattle, Vancouver and up-island points.

DUNCAN — First conviction in recent years under the Small Vessels Act was registered here yesterday.

ERRINGTON — Tense drama of men who became trapped in a mine following an explosion was well presented by the cast in "Sewers of Coal," a one-act play offered by Comox Valley Drama Club at the Errington War Memorial Hall.

In the cast were Albert Timcke, Shirley Gregory, Jean Boyle, Sid Williams and Neil Drensen.

"The Pyjama Party," a light and colorful skit was given by the Beta Sigma Psi Sorority, Courtenay, with Joyce Hunt, Ethel Petrie, Andrea Lowe, Pat Williams, Rosemary Rozen, Mary Lou Hayes and Ruth Kirk in the cast.

Valeria Valentine, Bob McKay, Joy McKay and Dorothy Simons, E.D.A. Players of Errington, presented "In a Glass Darkly," a one-act play directed by H. F. Butler.

LADYSMITH — Six young Ladysmith schoolgirls are in the running to be queen and two princesses to reign over the July 1 celebrations here.

They are Lois Swettenham sponsored by Club 44; Judy Robertson, Native Daughters; Karen McIntosh, Mt. Brenton PTA; Linda Allison, St. Mary's Auxiliary; Georgina Simpson, Eagles' Auxiliary; and Nadine Battle, Ladysmith Dance School.

The queen will be crowned June 30 and that event will be followed by a gala holiday dance.

KYUQUOT — Although residents here have been warned financing large capital school expenditures may be difficult unless a large consolidated school district is formed, they seem to fear the loss of local control and interest.

Proposals that have received a rather cool reception concern forming of a school district to include Kyuquot, Zeballos, Esplanade, Tahsis and Gold River.

PARKSVILLE — A wheelchair for the use of war veterans in this district will be purchased by the Mount Arrowsmith Canadian Legion Branch.

KYUQUOT — First twins to be born at Kyuquot arrived unexpectedly May 18 to Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Morris.

Mrs. Morris had booked passage for the following day's flight to Vancouver where she had intended to await the birth of her baby.

The twins, boys, were born at home with nurse Sofia Smith of the Red Cross Outpost Hospital in attendance.

DUNCAN — Cowichan Creamery Association employees put out a fire in the "hammering" department of their building yesterday, and then tried to signal city firemen that they were not needed.

But the firemen did not see their signals at the firehall, half a block away, and arrived just in time to put out a fire that had started again.

NANAIMO — A blind man, Perry York, and his deaf-mute wife, Martha Bertha, used touch and sign language for two hours here Thursday to testify against a driver who crashed into their car. Malcolm Keeble was found guilty of careless driving and fined $25.

PARKSVILLE — Mount Arrowsmith Canadian Legion Branch has organized a campaign to raise $600 to transport Parksville district air cadets to weekly parades in Nanaimo.

The Legion kicked off the campaign with a donation of $100.

DUNCAN — More than 700 adults received free Salk vaccine anti-polio shots here during a two-day clinic at the Vancouver Island Health Unit.

Booster shots are needed June 8 or 10 with the third shots next January.

DUNCAN — Plans are being made here at the annual meeting, by members of the Duncan Musical Club to produce another operetta this year.

Miss Roberta Wagner was elected president. The play has not been named yet.

GALIANO ISLAND — Funeral services will be held here today for Mrs. Grace Zala, who died at her home Wednesday in her 88th year.

Mrs. Zala was born in Worcester, England, and came to British Columbia in 1897. She was a registered nurse and in 1912, as Miss Grace Woodward, she was first matron of Ladysmith Hospital. She served overseas as a nursing sister from 1915 to 1918 and had lived on Galiano Island since 1920.

She is survived by her husband, Victor, on Galiano Island, and one sister, Miss Harriet Woodward, in New Westminster.

PORT ALBERNI — Brian Moore, local optometrist, will head the Kinsmen Club of the Alberni Valley during the coming year.

He was elected at the annual meeting to succeed lawyer William Beckingham.

Other officers are E. G. Lynn, vice-president; Les McMillan, secretary; Ralph Schroeder, treasurer; Albert Hodson, historian; Doug Harmon, registrar; Bob Garrard, Pete Gullstone and Howard McLean, directors.

During the meeting in Hotel Barclay members heard an address by RCMP Sgt. W. A. West. His subject was "Safety Afloat."

DUNCAN — Funeral services will be held today for Mrs. Iva Josephine Stoltz, 78, a resident here for 17 years. She died Thursday.

Born in Minneapolis, Minn., she came to Canada in 1916 and lived at Ruskin until she moved to Oyster River in 1940 before coming here.

Services will be held in Hirst funeral home at 1.30 p.m. Pastor G. W. Stolz officiating. Cremation will follow.

NANAIMO — University courses for students in B.C.'s high schools were classed as "prestige courses" by retiring school inspector Claude Campbell of Nanaimo at a PTA council annual banquet.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is drafting revisions in the anti-combines legislation to allow certain types of competition-eliminating business mergers, it was learned Friday.

Well-informed sources say framers of the new legislation are encountering some difficulty in writing this modification into the long-standing principle of anti-combines law that maintenance of business competition is its chief purpose.

FULTON SPEECH
Some idea of what the government has in mind was given in a recent Toronto speech by Justice Minister Fulton.

Among principles and purposes he said the government intends to retain in the legislation is "by maintaining competition, to bring about the most effective allocation of resources and the highest possible standard of living."

PRICE CONTROL
Informants say elimination of competition for the purpose of getting control of prices, restraining trade or other factors detrimental to the public interest will still be illegal under the legislation.

Spectacle Rouses Sleepers

Lights blinked on in house windows for blocks around as the tower of flame-tinged smoke rose over the factory. One man, awakened by sirens, came sleepily to his front porch, came wide-awake at sight of the blaze and raced back to the front door shouting inside, "Hey, come here!"

He ran back to look at the fire, then back to the door bellowing, "Hey, come here! HEY, COME HERE!"

More windows lighted up in the surrounding houses.

Flames Cause Blackout

Several B.C. Electric transformers on poles along David Street, near the inferno, exploded in blinding blue flashes when the fire reached its peak intensity.

Power was cut off along Esquimalt Road and Head Street from 2.44 to 3.19 a.m., when electricity was rerouted around the destroyed David Street wires.

A company spokesman said the explosions were caused when the cooling oil inside each transformer became too hot. When overheated this oil burns just like furnace oil, he said.

Leaping Flames Lick City Sky

Flames towering hundreds of feet into the early morning air were soaked into fizzling ashes in half an hour today as a mushrooming, $100,000 general-alarm fire wrecked half of the Dalziel Box Company plant in the heart of Victoria's sawmill area.

Firemen saved the main sawmill by clambering over its roof and fighting their way down smoky David Street to aim hoses at the heart of the roaring fire.

MYSTERY EXPLOSION

They could not save most of the buildings on the rear half of the property at 2800 Bridge Street, on Selkirk Water—buildings containing a green chain, band saw, bull saw and head saw, one or two storage sheds and a number of stacks of lumber.

Cause of the fire—which started at 2.30 a.m.—was not known at press time, but eye-witnesses said flames started in or near one of the storage sheds, then spurted to the other buildings after a mysterious explosion.

HELL OF WALLOP

Dan Williams, 961 Tattersall, one of the first to see the flames, was driving in a car with three companions at the Fountain Circle when: "I saw flames leaping 75 feet into the air. We drove over and saw that the fire was in a green-chain shed at the rear of the property. "Then we heard a hell of a great wallop. It sounded like an oil tank exploded. Then flames spread all over and burned forward into the other sheds. The main building was still intact."

FAST START

An estimated 4,000 square feet of buildings were aflame as firemen got into position in the next five to 10 minutes. Transformers in the area were exploding in brilliant blue flames.

Sparks were flying hundreds of feet into the air on a southerly wind. Many fell on homes within a block but some drifted down onto houses as far away as Hillside.

FEARS CALMED

Dozens of residents feared briefly for the safety of their homes but, by the time they could make any plans, firemen were beginning to win the battle.

Had they lost, flames could have covered a huge area, including the Moore-Whittington lumber mill, Ideal Fuel Company, city works department yard and Victoria Paving Company building.

At fire headquarters, firemen said alarms were coming in so fast "we can't count them—but it's a general alarm one, all right."

ALL MEN CALLED

Every fireman on duty in the city, an estimated 30, went to the blaze at first call at 2.30 a.m. Within 10 minutes, 25 off-duty firemen were summoned from their beds.

Some were to go to the Dalziel fire, others to take positions in fire halls. But as the flames were controlled, an automatic alarm in the main Dalziel plant went off, bringing the reserve trucks to the scene.

They were not needed. Majority among the large crowd of bystanders agreed at 3 a.m. that the main plant would be lost. But at 3.15, firemen were saying "it's still burning but we've got it cut off."

NO ESTIMATE GIVEN

Dalziel officials, including manager John Peden, could not give a definite estimate of damage or of the number of employees put out of work by the swift-moving fire. Unofficially, it was learned that equipment in the saw sheds was worth more than $50,000, while the sheds and lumber lost were considered valued at a similar amount.

The main building, which was saved, had a sprinkler system. The firm's office was scorched, but all records were believed saved.

Twenty Minutes Of Drama

At 3 a.m. it looked as though the flames would sweep the entire length of the factory.

At 3.15 a.m. firemen had choked it off and the flames were dying with dramatic speed.

At 3.20 a.m. the plant's raucous fire bell finally sounded its alarm.

Police Act

Pyjama Brigade Herded

City detectives, among the first to arrive at the scene, herded curious and some bystanders who appeared to have been drinking away from the danger area of falling sparks and deadly overhead power lines.

People rushed from all directions, many of them clad only in pyjamas and slippers. They were sleepy-eyed and huddled in small groups, talking in whispers. Police constables were pulled off their downtown beats and driven to the fire in paddy wagons. They were bolstered by uniformed army and navy shore patrols who volunteered when the panic started.

Another large crowd, routed from their beds by the intense glow in the sky, gathered on the hillside across Selkirk Water along Langford Street and Tye Road. Many of them didn't stop to get dressed before rushing out to ask what was happening.

Work Fire? Work

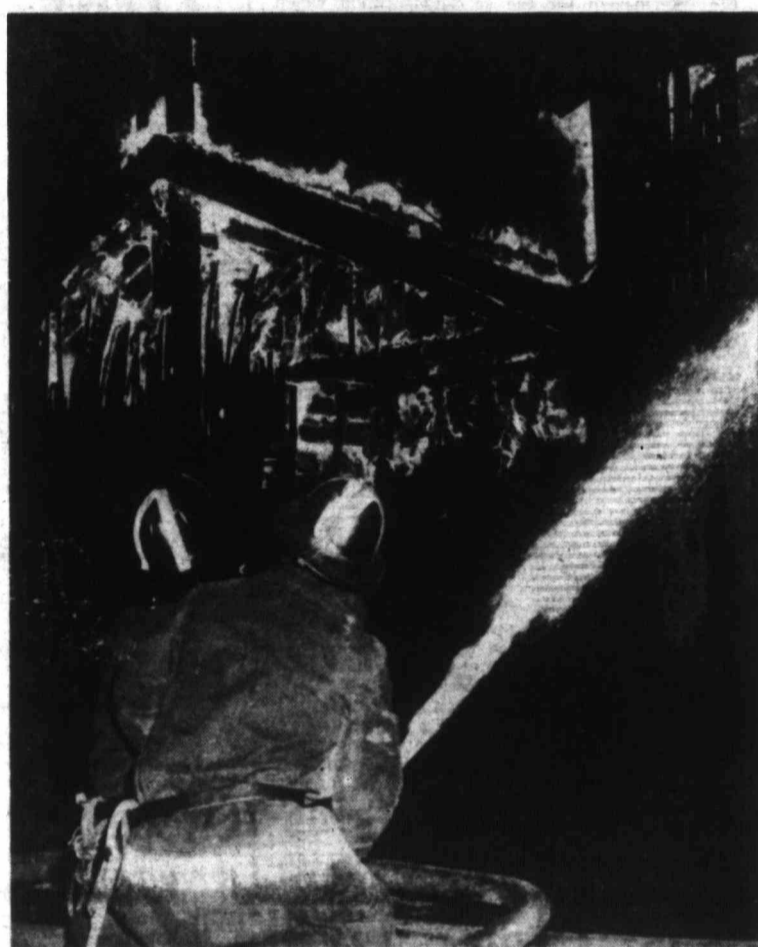

After "a little bit of worry," the fire was all in the day's work for Mrs. Jean Preston, 440 Bay Street, who was polishing floors at Moore-Whittington lumber mill, only a few score yards away.

Not far away, with another group of floor-waxers who work graveyard shift under contract, Alfred "Bob" Kyle, 2620 Cedar Hill, was on the job in Smith Cedar mill when he saw smoke and "figured it was Moore-Whittington."

He phoned Mrs. Preston "to get her out of there."

She assured him she was safe and "opened the door on David Street, and there it was just blazing over the rooftops."

After checking, she made sure she was in no danger, "and I just finished my work and went home for a cup of tea."

Alabaman Aggravated

'Rabbit Not White? Burn That Book!'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) —An Alabama state legislator said Friday a children's book depicting the marriage of a white girl rabbit to a black boy rabbit should be burned.

State Sen. E. O. Eddins said the picture book should be "taken off the shelves and burned" even though it is intended for pre-school-age children.

"There are many other books of the same nature and others that are Communistic which should be burned as well," Eddins said.

NOT IN OPEN

The children's picture book, "The Rabbit's Wedding," intended for children under five years of age, has been removed from the open shelves of Alabama public libraries because of segregation criticism.

Phone Calls Flood In

People from all parts of Victoria and surrounding areas called The Daily Colonist to ask "where's the fire?"

Police and fire department switchboards also were flooded by curious callers.

Job Pleases Fire Chief

Fire Chief James Baylis was proud of the job his department did. "I don't know how we did it with the number of men we've got," he said.

Garth Williams, author of the book, said he was "completely unaware that animals with white fur were considered blood relations of white human beings." He said the rabbits had contrasting colors for pictorial reasons.

Emily Wheelock Reed, director of the Alabama library service division, said the book had not been banned.

"That would not be morally right," she said. "We have put it on the reserve shelf where the public can get it by request only."

She said the reserve shelf carries books which might be considered offensive for reasons of morality or obscenity. "Lolita" is one of these.

Miss Reed said she was surprised at the criticism. "Personally," she said, "I like the book."

Power Subsidy Urged

Island Milked By Commission?

By Colonist Staff Reporter

MAPLE BAY — Vancouver Island municipal representatives called on the provincial government yesterday to subsidize B.C. Power Commission operations in low-return districts.

The Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities passed a resolution which said the commission was making a profit in Island districts far in excess of the margin utilities normally were allowed to make up for losses in other districts. (See other stories, Page 13).

MOST UNJUST

"The voice of the Vancouver Island municipalities might help convince the government that it would be most unjust if any more were put on our power rates," said Mayor William Moore of Courtenay.

Another Courtenay resolution, passed by the association, asked the provincial government to "equalize" all its laws regarding land assessment.

Reeve C. A. P. Murison of North Cowichan said a change in the Assessment Equalization Act made at the last session of the legislature appeared to require municipalities to have two separate assessments of property, one under that act for school taxation and the other under the Municipal Act for general taxation.

Ottawa Inks April in Black

OTTAWA (CP) — The government started its 1959-60 fiscal year in the black Finance Minister Fleming reports.

In April, first month of the fiscal year, there was a small surplus of $1,400,000 after revenues of $299,900,000 and expenditures of $298,500,000.
